WARREN COUNTY

Vincent Pace, serving with the Army in Vietnam, has been awarded the Army commendation medal for heroism in combat. The medal was given for his exemplary duty under hostile fire near Bong Son on Feb. 7. He held illumination flares during the night attack and passed them out to men on the perimeter of the battle, moving from position to position under enemy fire. Page One.

Testimony in the Cobham Fund litigation in County Court came to an end yesterday, but a decision in the matter is not to be made immediately. Still to be completed are filing of briefs and arguments and consideration of the case by Judge Alexander C. Flick Jr. Page B1.

The state Legislature is considering a bill which would establish a pension fund or annuity for paid fire department members. Warren borough, the only government in the county which would benefit by the bill, already has a pension plan established through a law passed in 1879. Page B1.

The army commendation medal for heroism was recently awarded Vincent Pace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Pace of 27 Walnut st., for securing and passing out flares five times while under intense fire in Vietnam Feb. 7. Page One.

The Northwest Pennsylvania Regional Planning and Development Commission may get a federal Appalachia grant of $26,990. County commissioner Lewis Crippen, head of the planning group, said yesterday that the NWPRDC is the first such group in Pennsylvania to become eligible for immediate funding. Page A3.

McKean County commissioners approved documents which establish the joint airport authority that Warren County is to participate in. The documents approved are an ordinance, a joint agreement between the four counties involved, and an application for articles of incorporation. Page B1.

THE NATION

Several Democratic senators sharply attacked President Johnson's Vietnam policy on the Senate floor yesterday. Scored were both air attacks on the Hanoi-Haiphong area and Gen. Westmoreland's speech. Page One.

The Senate unanimously approved a treaty establishing general principles for the peaceful exploration of space. The treaty bans weapons of mass destruction in space. Page One.

THE WORLD

Navy and Air Force jets attacked through a curtain of anti-aircraft and missile fire and swarms of enemy jets and then again bombed military and industrial targets near Hanoi and Haiphong. Page One.

Peking radio said two U.S. jets had been shot down over the territory of Communist China. The report said the jets were brought down Monday. Page One.

SPORTS

Warren and Youngsville both recorded victories in track and field yesterday. The Dragons, led by double winners Joe Cauley and Jim Beichner, routed conference foe Corry, 122-28. George Nelson and Kay Burleigh both took a pair of first places to pace the Eagles over Townville, 91½-58½. Page A6.

The Philadelphia 76ers were tabbed as the next NBA dynasty by their coach Alex Hannum and San Francisco mentor Bill Sharman following the 76ers' triumph over the Warriors for the championship in Monday night's game. The 76ers had to rally in the fourth quarter to capture the title, four games to two. Page A7.

Pittsburgh's Willie Stargel broke out of his slump last night to spark the Pirates to a 7-3 victory with four RBI's against the Philadelphia Phillies. The Cleveland Indians blanked Minnesota, 1-0 behind Steve Hargan's two-hitter. Page A6.

HOW THE COSMONAUT DIED

An artist's conception above illustrates what occurred prior to the fate of veteran Soviet cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov who tragically ended his space flight Monday by riding the spacecraft into the earth. (A) indicates where and how the decision to eject or stay with the craft may have been made; (B) where and how the spaceship may have become entangled.

Russia Will Continue With Space Exploration

MOSCOW — Despite the tragedy Monday that took the life of a Soviet astronaut, the Soviet Union will press on with space exploration, Izvestia, the government newspaper, asserted last night.

earth, killing Col. Vladimir M. Komarov, the pilot. The craft was launched Sunday at 3:35 a.m. from Baikonur, the space center 1,200 miles southeast of Moscow.

Discussing the impact of the accident on future manned flights, Izvestia said: "We inevitably will go further. That is the way it has been and that is the way it will be. We will go forward, but with sharpened attention and keeping in mind the untimely death of a fine man."

Izvestia took pains to rebut any speculation that the Soyuz accident had been the result of haste because of competition with the United States.

Pravda, the Communist party's newspaper, said yesterday that Colonel Komarov had struggled until death in an effort to save the spaceship, the first launched by the Soviet Union in more than two years.

It was unclear whether the astronaut had a personal parachute that would have enabled him to escape the spaceship in a landing emergency.

Reporting that the astronaut had successfully completed the test program intended for the

However, plans for manned flights this summer are certain to be postponed as a special government commission investigates the cause of the accident of Soyuz 1, a new spaceship that was being tested.

The main attention of the commission apparently will be focused on the parachute system of the spaceship. The lines of the parachute, according to Soviet reports, snarled when the chute was opened at 23,000 feet during return from orbit.

Senate Approves Treaty To Control Outer Space

By TOM SEPPY
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate yesterday approved the outer space treaty, a measure President Johnson has said can be a beginning to new understanding and harmony between East and West.

Only last month, the Senate approved the U.S.-Soviet consular treaty, the first bilateral treaty between the two nations since the days of the Russian czars.

Johnson has said the two treaties, along with easing trade with Iron Curtain countries, are the beginnings of East-West "bridge-building" efforts.

The outer space treaty, needing a two-thirds majority for passage, was ratified 88 to 0, but several senators said they put no faith in Soviet Russia's signature on the measure.

Typical of the critical comment, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R.-S.C., said it is "nothing more than a scrap of paper" to the Communists.

The treaty prohibits the establishment of military bases on celestial bodies and provides for on-site inspection. It also states that "no nation can claim sovereignty to outer space, to the moon or to other celestial bodies" and "space activities and their results are to be reported for the benefit of all."

The measure bans the putting of a nuclear weapons system in an orbiting vehicle, but provides for no on-site vehicle inspection. Military officials testified during hearings, however, they would prefer to rely on their own monitoring techniques.

During debate, Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, said the United States may already have violated "the spirit of the treaty" by use of photographs from satellites to conduct bombing in Vietnam.

"I think it is highly improper to use any satellite in space to aid any war," Gruening said.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee and a critic of U.S. policy in Vietnam, opened debate by saying he found it "highly encouraging that a treaty of such significance can be concluded during a period of severe international crises."

"It speaks well of the political maturity of the United States and the Soviet Union that, despite their very serious differences, efforts to find areas of accommodations can be pursued to success," he said.

North Viet Military Sites Again Targets Of American Pilots

By TOM BUCKLEY

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
SAIGON—American Navy and Air Force pilots pressed on through a curtain of anti-aircraft and missile fire and swarms of enemy jets yesterday as they continued their forbidden military and industrial targets near Hanoi and Haiphong.

In Hanoi, Air Force pilots based in Thailand hit a railroad repair yard and the electrical transformer station situated 2½ miles and 7 miles, respectively, from the center of the city.

Navy fliers from the carriers Kittyhawk and Bonhomme Richard attacked a cement plant a mile from the center of Haiphong, North Vietnam's major port, and an ammunition dump and petroleum storage tanks a few miles beyond.

A military spokesman announced the loss of at least one Navy plane in the raid on Haiphong. Two F-4 Phantoms went down in attacks on MIG airbases at Kep and Hoalac outside Hanoi it was disclosed, one of them apparently when it ran out of fuel on its homeward run. In another operation in the North, the spokesman said, an F-8 Crusader was lost.

Four of the seven crewmen involved were rescued. The other three are listed as missing in action.

Pilots who took part in the two days of raids, which sharply raised the pressure being exerted by the U.S. in hopes of forcing North Vietnam to the peace table as an alternative to having its major industries reduced to rubble, were flown here to describe their experiences.

"The enemy dealt us a full house," said Cmdr. James H. Wilson, commander of a squadron that hit the Kep Air Base, 37 miles northeast of Hanoi, "It was the whole works, Triple-A (anti-aircraft artillery), missiles and MIGs. There was more Triple-A fire than you would see in those World War II movies. Tracers, explosions, flares in all colors." Wilson (who lives in San Diego) is on his second tour of duty in Vietnam. He has 180 missions to his credit as well as 63 flown during the Korean war.

He said that his squadron appeared to have put its bombs on target but that only a study of reconnaissance photographs could provide a firm assess-

Red China Claims U.S. Jets Downed

(C) N.Y. Times News Service

HONG KONG — Peking radio reported yesterday that two American jet aircraft had been shot down over Chinese territory.

A broadcast monitored here said they were brought down Monday by Chinese fighter planes over China's Kwangsi-Chuang autonomous region, which has a common border with North Vietnam. Peking identified the United States aircraft as F-4B Phantoms.

American military spokesmen in Saigon denied that any U.S. aircraft had crossed into China or been shot down by Chinese planes.

The American planes "intruder into China's air space for the purpose of creating a war provocation," according to the Peking report. They were immediately engaged by an air force unit of the "People's Liberation Army," which "annihilated them both" in aerial combat.

Chinese report gave no further details of the battle and did not indicate whether the U.S. planes were downed by cannon fire or air-to-air missiles.

The Phantom, an all-weather fighter, is the fastest operational U.S. aircraft.

China is believed to have units of MIG-21s, the most advanced fighter, based in the southern part of China.

A Peking broadcast said the success of the Chinese planes was "another major victory" in defense of China's territorial air space and "great proletarian cultural revolution."

It stated that the military affairs commission of the Chinese Communist party's central committee had honored the Chinese unit with a citation for shooting down the two American planes.

There was some speculation here that Peking's intrusion charge might be used as justification for permitting North Vietnamese aircraft to be based in China now that their own airfields have been attacked by the U.S.

Konrad Adenauer Buried With Medieval Grandeur

By DAVID BINDER

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
COLOGNE, West Germany—Konrad Adenauer, a son of the Rhine, was buried last night near the mighty river that he had helped change from a border of contention of a symbol of fraternity.

Representatives of some of Germany's ancient foes attended the state funeral for the federal republic's first chancellor, which was held in medieval grandeur.

Senior among them was President de Gaulle, who had fought Germany as an officer of the French army in two wars, and who later became a personal friend of Adenauer.

The other head of state was by the solemnity and symbolism of the occasion.

But the spirit of western conciliation which Adenauer strove for as German chancellor from 1949 to 1963 was also marked by the presence of other distinguished guests.

There were Prime Minister Harold Wilson and former Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain; David Ben Gurion, the first premier of Israel.

There were prime ministers of the Netherlands, Belgium, Denmark, Norway and Italy, all countries which had felt the jackboot of German aggression in Adenauer's lifetime. There also was Dr. Nahum Goldman, chairman of the World Jewish Congress.

Millions in the West and in Communist East Germany followed the day-long ceremonies by television and radio. The transmissions were not carried on East German television, but the western television program was visible in large sections along the border and around West Berlin.

Thousands more watched the pageant as it moved up and down the Rhine valley: from the Bonn parliament building, where the federal government officially memorialized Adenauer, to the great cathedral of his native Cologne for a pontifical requiem Mass, and back up the swift gray river by ship to Rhondorf for burial near the home of his latter years.

Appropriately his death achieved what he had also worked for in life, a union of western leaders.

Heroism Award Given Local GI

A 1964 graduate of Warren Area High School now serving in the United States Army recently received the army commendation medal for heroism in the Vietnam conflict.

Honored was Vincent Pace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Pace of 27 Walnut St.

The commendation for action on February 7 in the Republic of Vietnam, for which Sp/4 E-4 Pace received the army commendation with "V" device, reads as follows:

"For heroism in connection with military operations against a hostile force, Sp/4 Pace distinguished himself in action 7 February 1967, while serving with H & H Co., 1st Bn, 5th Cavalry, during combat operations near Bong Son.

"On this date, the forward base camp of Specialist Pace's company came under a combined mortar and small arms attack. With complete disregard for his own safety Sp. Pace immediately rushed to the ammunition storage area to secure hand-held illumination flares, then took them to men on the perimeter.

"Four times during the course of the battle Pace moved under intense hostile fire to secure more illumination flares and pass them out to soldiers on the line. Sp. Pace's courageous action stands in highest traditions of the military service and reflects great credit upon himself, his unit and the United States Army."

A Teenager's First Car - Part One

your car if you finance it.

3. The contract for your automobile insurance.

4. The contract that sets forth the terms of any guarantees given with your car.

5. The contract with the state, known as registration and licensing.

6. The document of ownership called the title.

7. Your contract with the state to operate your car according to its laws—your driver's license.

Some of these obligations become yours when you got your license, but with ownership they are added to.

In addition, if you also finance the down payment on your car, you have another contract covering that miserable situation.

What is it that you do when you sign a contract? Very broadly, a contract can be defined as a legal promise that you cannot break without suffering a penalty.

When you sign the contracts concerned with automobile ownership, you are making legal promises to do certain things at certain times and in certain ways, and you are promising not to do certain other things at all.

Possibly the most important thing to remember about these contracts is that they are your contracts. They may be drawn up and offered by auto dealers, banks, insurance companies, state agencies, etc., but they are not their contracts.

They are, I repeat, your contracts, and most of what they deal with are your actions, your responsibilities, and your penalties if the contracts are broken.

And if you violate your contracts, it doesn't matter whether you did so on purpose, or because you didn't read the contract, or because you read it and didn't understand it, ignorance of the law (or in the purchaser) is no excuse.

If you are under 21, unmarried, and supported by your parents, they will have to sign most of your contracts and assume equal responsibility for them.

But if in fact and operation it is your car, and you are the principal operator, it is your car that is forfeited if some contracts are broken, and your future mortgage if you are at fault in others, and your freedom lost if you are contemptuous of others.

In effect, the contracts you have to sign seem to give the other party the right to hit you at will, but forbid you to hit back. And that's about the way it is.

This isn't because their contracts are dishonest, or crooked and you need a lawyer to keep them honest. It is simply that the contracts offered you are clearly, openly, and legally as one-sided as they can be.

They are drawn up by attorneys hired by dealers, bankers, and insurance companies, and their purpose is to provide them with the maximum amount of protection from you; to give them the maximum and you the minimum amount of leverage.

If the contracts were drawn by your lawyer, with your interests in mind, the result would be contracts just as legal, but oh, how different!

Also, most of the contracts you will be offered will be so-called "standard" contracts, that is, printed contracts that "everybody" has to sign. And you may feel that since everybody else has to sign them, they must be all right and don't have to be read too closely.

There is a difference in so-called "standard" contracts. That word can mean merely the contract is standard with the particular dealer—the one he uses all the time. And it can be an awful "standard." It is up to you to read, accept and sign, or reject it.

There are, in every city, a number of different auto dealers, finance companies, banks, and insurance companies. Each one uses its own standard contract, but there may be a world of difference between them.

The value of a lawyer, if you could take one along, would be his ability to read contracts and his knowledge of them. He could very quickly tell whether the "standard" contract you were being offered was better or worse than one you would be offered elsewhere. If worse, he could attempt to negotiate better terms.

Perhaps the most important thing to remember is that until a contract agreement is signed by you (or your parents) it isn't a contract, no matter how much the dealer writes on it. Until you sign, it is merely an offer to sell you a certain car at a certain price, to be paid for in a certain way, and subject to certain restrictions if not paid for in full when purchased.

Some salesmen will try to make it appear that once they have filled out an offer to buy, you are somehow obligated to accept. But they can tear it up and throw it away if you don't sign, no matter how they have filled it out.

Obviously, most of you can't take a lawyer along when you shop for a car, and if you are buying a cheap car, the cost of having your proposed contracts examined might be too high to consider. But you might have access to inexpensive legal advice that you are not aware of.

If your parents have an attorney who handles their business or personal affairs, he might look over your proposed deal as a favor to them. Sometimes, a young lawyer just starting a practice will help you for a very small fee, hoping you will stay with him when you are an adult.

And, sometimes, you might find an older lawyer, perhaps a man retiring from practice, who would be pleased to help a young fellow human being.

It is my belief that no person should sign anything that is legally binding upon him until he has had legal advice. Lawyers, like doctors, can often prevent troubles they cannot cure if called in too late.

If you can't (or won't) get legal help in advance, there are two ways to help yourself.

1. Read every word in the contract you are asked to sign.

2. Do not sign until you understand the real meaning of every word.

If there are sections that are not clear to you, or words and phrases that are unfamiliar or beyond your understanding, don't be ashamed to ask the dealer, the banker, or the insurance man to explain them. If you are dealing with honorable men, they have nothing to hide, and it is better for them if you do understand everything. You will be less likely to cause trouble and extra expense to them.

If you are dealing with dishonorable men, the tip-off might be their reaction to your request. If they try to fob you off with an airy declaration that "it's the regular contract that everybody signs," or pretend it's some nonsense the government demands, or assure you that regardless of what the paper says, they would never do anything like that—if there is evasion of any kind, no matter how friendly, you had better beware.

WAHS Senior Gets Academy Appointment

E. Morgan (Corky) Greenwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest M. Greenwood of 495 Quaker-Hill rd., has been appointed to the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Due to graduate from Warren Area High School in June, he will report to the academy June 27.

CORKY GREENWOOD

He was notified of his appointment in a letter from Lt. Gen. Thomas Moorman, superintendent of the academy, yesterday. Rep. Albert Johnson of the 23rd Congressional District had nominated him for the academy.

With the appointment of Greenwood, there will be cadets from Warren next fall at each of the main service academies—the Air Force Academy, West Point, and Annapolis.

Two 1966 graduates of Warren Area High School will be starting their second year of studies at academies next fall: Michael Spinney at West Point and David Sorensen at Annapolis.

the men who flew cover for the bombing runs, was credited with downing one of the MIGs. He told how he hit it with a heat-seeking air-to-air rocket, which "went right up his tailpipe."

Six of the older and slower MIGs were pitted against three Phantoms during the brief dogfight. The combatants roared from near ground level to 5,000 feet at 400 to 600 miles an hour, often screaming down to within a few yards of one another.

Maj. Harry Pawlik (of Albemarle, N.C.), whose Air Force struck at the railroad repair new spaceship, Pravda added: "His final communications to earth were models of precise and crisp information, self-control and calmness. The difficulties that arose during the landing only increased his strength. But even with all his experience, ingenuity and swift reactions, he was unable to overcome the emergency."

Komarov, who was 40 years old, will be given a hero's funeral today in Red Square.

His ashes will be placed in a niche in the Kremlin wall.

Yesterday, tens of thousands of Muscovites waited hours in line to file past a flower-covered bier in a second floor hall of fame of the House of the Soviet Army, a mile north of the Kremlin on Commune Square.

Inside the building soldiers lined the corridors and the stairway under black-draped chandeliers. In the large red banner hall relatives of Colonel Komarov sat near an honor guard of soldiers, Soviet leaders, scientists and astronauts.

State Justice Department Seeks to Defer Wire Tapping

By VINCENT P. CAROCCI HARRISBURG (AP) —

The state Justice Department recommended yesterday that the General Assembly defer legislation on wiretapping or other listening devices until federal guidelines are established.

The Department noted at a joint House-Senate hearing that decisions on the advisability of legalizing or outlawing the devices are pending before Congress and the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Department's position paper, prepared by Deputy Atty. Gen. Frank P. Lawley and endorsed by Atty. Gen. William C. Sennett, supported wiretapping or eavesdropping by law enforcement agencies under strict court supervision.

Their testimony was presented before a House and Senate Judiciary hearing on the proposed new crimes code. The hearing, one in a series, was devoted to the electronic eavesdropping question.

The proposed code would prohibit wiretapping or other electronic listening practices in this state, unless one of the parties involved consented to the bugging.

Present state law prohibits wiretapping by any agency, but contains no restrictions on the use of other listening devices.

The Pennsylvania AFL-CIO, the American Civil Liberties Union of Pennsylvania, and the Americans for Democratic Action of Southeastern Pennsylvania were vigorously opposed to any use of the equipment, even under strict court supervision.

Harry Boyer, AFL-CIO president, said a number of law officials, including F.B.I. Director J. Edgar Hoover and Philadelphia District Atty. Arlen Specter, have said wiretapping was an "archaic and inefficient practice" in fighting crime.

"The preservation of individual freedom should have priority over facilitating police work," he said.

Commented Thomas M. Kerr, representing the Civil Liberties Union:

"Any wiretap or eavesdropping... invades the privacy of any individuals who do not know that the police are making a tape of everything they said."

Bernard L. Segal, representing the Southeastern Pennsylvania ADA, challenged proponents of wiretapping by law agencies to produce statistics that eavesdropping assisted them substantially in their investigations.

"They have no statistics or justification to back up their thesis that this is an aid in law enforcement," he said.

However, Louis C. Glasso, a Pittsburgh attorney, and representatives of the Philadelphia Crime Commission and the Pennsylvania Chiefs of Police Association all recommended controlled use of the devices.

Glasso felt wiretapping or eavesdropping was justified in only five instances — treason, known criminals, syndicated crime, narcotics and drugs, and bank robbery.

He suggested stringent penalties be mandated for those who violate laws regulating the use of the devices.

Philip H. Ward, chairman of the Crime Commission's wiretapping committee, endorsed the practice under the strictest of supervision by the criminal courts.

Chautauqua County Court Bids Opened

MAYVILLE, N.Y. — Bids totalling more than $2.5 million were opened in Mayville yesterday afternoon for major alterations of Chautauqua County courthouse and the construction of the new five-story office building to be attached to the present courthouse building.

Hydro Construction of Buffalo, N.Y., submitted the lowest of five bids for the general construction with a bid of $1,895,000.

Low bid for the plumbing and air-conditioning went to Sans Corporation of Jamestown with a bid of $237,000.

A low bid of $341,300 for the electrical work was submitted by the Buffalo firm of Curia and Jones, Phillip Thorsell of the architectural firm of Maetzker and Thorsell indicated that the bids were $4,000 higher than estimates made earlier this year.

The remodeling and additions to the courthouse are only half of the total building complex envisioned by Chautauqua County. Architects Maetzker and Thorsell of Jamestown are presently working on detailed drawings for another new office building to house the county health department, welfare department and mental health department.

Supervisor Leon Button, chairman of the building committee of the board of supervisors, indicated that no contracts can be awarded until a federal grant is approved for a Civil Defense emergency operating center which is included in the courthouse remodeling.

Walter D. Dove, project architect, and county Civil Defense director Harold W. Eckwald will travel to Albany today in an effort to expedite granting of the federal funds.

County officials say they expect the federal government to approve a grant for $250,000 to cover half of the cost of the emergency operating center. Button said he is hopeful that his committee can make the recommendations to the board of supervisors at its next regular meeting on May 12.

Hydro Construction Company informed county officials that the project would be completed in 600 calendar days after work begins, making the completion date in the early spring of 1969.

The new office building will have a subbasement, basement and three stories above ground.

A capital construction fund of $5.3 million was recently approved by the county board of supervisors for the building project which includes equipping the new 59 by 235-foot building and construction of the proposed health and welfare building. A total of $1.5 million has been put aside in the budget for the project, but the remainder must be raised through short-term borrowing. This marks the first time in nearly 20 years that Chautauqua County has had to borrow funds for a project.

State Approves Regional Planning Group's Bylaws

The Northwestern Pennsylvania Regional Planning and Development Commission (NWPRPDC) may be the first such group in the state to receive a grant under the federal Appalachia program.

Because the group's bylaws meet established guidelines, the NWPRPDC is reportedly eligible for a grant of $26,990. Lewis Crippen, Warren County Commissioner and president of the regional planning group, returned yesterday from a meeting of the state department of commerce in Harrisburg. He outlined what happened at the meeting, which concerned the NWPRPDC and six similar groups in the 52-county Appalachia area of Pennsylvania.

The director of the commerce department's bureau of state and federal aid, William T. Schmidt, discussed guidelines established for regional planning groups. He then announced the NWPRPDC's eligibility for the $26,990 grant, to be used for operating expenses.

Crippen said his group is the only one of the seven regional planning groups that is now eligible for a grant. He said the NWPRPDC is "eligible for immediate funding, requiring only a brief summary of an anticipated program."

The state would provide 25 per cent of the $26,990; the federal government would provide the remainder.

Crippen spoke at the meeting, explaining how his organization weaves planning commissions, county governments, industrial development groups and tourism promotion groups into a single promotional organization.

Schmidt said that all seven regional planning groups in the state's Appalachia area should prepare programs for local development. He said priority would be given airport expansion, vocational-technical school programs, and expansion of facilities for training medical personnel and teachers. He stressed that Commerce Secretary Clifford L. Jones has final authority in recommending programs.

Pennsylvania is a forerunner among the 12 Appalachia states in developing guidelines for regional planning, Schmidt said.

"We want you to know that we mean business," he said when he announced local development district allotments.

Nearly 100 delegates from regional planning groups attended the meeting.

In addition to Crippen, the NWPRPDC delegation included Venango county commissioner Joseph Levi, treasurer; Howard Irons of Crawford County, secretary; industrial development expert Thomas Bundy, tourism promotion official Jay Bailey and planning director Christopher Capotis, all of Erie County; and Harry R. Fowler, executive director of Venango County Industrial Development Commission.

The full 56-member NWPRPDC will meet in Oil City May 25.

Let's Shoot For the Moon

Will it become a dream come true? —or forever remain a partial nightmare?

Warren is on the very brink of becoming one of the most charming communities in northwestern Pennsylvania. Blessed with a natural beauty from its very beginning—with the waters of the Allegheny and the wooded hillsides; with the many handsome and well maintained homes—both old and new—and with a vast potential to be realized from the mighty Kinzua Dam and Reservoir, Warren has a real future. Yet, let's be honest. Warren, in many areas is "far from the epitome of a beautiful city," as one councilman put it Monday night, adding that if proposed urban renewal "falls flat on its face, we will suffer great losses."

Visualize if you will the Route 6 Warren by-pass upon completion. Will motorists traveling this circuitous highway gaze down on Warren borough and feel no desire to stop in for a real look at the town? Or will they be impressed with what they see and want to see more? An example is found in the town of Etna en route to Pittsburgh. How many Warrenites driving via by-pass to Pittsburgh feel the urge to drop down and become better acquainted with Etna?

Without suitable building and housing codes, eyesores in many wards of the borough may continue to blight the area for many years to come. And without these codes, planned urban renewal, designed to correct or alleviate many problems, will fall far behind schedule.

Several progressive businessmen have already modernized store fronts. Others have built handsome, modern, new structures. Still others have urged passage of codes, acceleration of urban renewal since they stand ready to invest more than a quarter of a million dollars in their own beautification projects.

Citizen interest is growing. Many home owners are beginning to seek action on the removal from their neighborhoods of abandoned or dilapidated structures.

Much progress has been made—both in borough and county—with zoning, subdivision regulations and advisory groups.

Will the bubble burst—or do we shoot for the moon?

Causes Problems for Bobby

WASHINGTON — It wasn't supposed to be mentioned outside of civil rights circles, but one of Sen. Robert Kennedy's closest confidantes has been raising funds for Rev. Martin Luther King; and the activity is certain to help pose more problems for Bobby when he finally tosses his hat in the Presidential ring.

The fund-raiser is William J. Vanden Heuvel, whom Kennedy sent to Germany as his personal emissary to persuade Der Stern magazine to censor its version of the William Manchester book. Earlier, Vanden Heuvel, who is married to the lovely daughter of Jules Stein, powerful head of the Music Corporation of America, was brought into the Justice Department as Bobby's special assistant.

It's now revealed that Vanden Heuvel sent solicitation letters in February to several of Kennedy's wealthy friends, urging them to meet with Dr. King on March 6.

The letter explained delicately: "Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., will be in New York on March 6 and has asked to meet a small number of interested individuals like yourself in order to discuss his future work in the civil rights movement. We will be meeting at the home of Carter Burden, 1 West 72nd Street, at 5:30 P.M., . . . There are few men in our time who have acted with greater courage than Doctor King or who have gained greater respect throughout the world. . . . This is the critical moment for those who believe in Dr. King's work and methods to come forward to express our support. Even if you are not in a position to help at this time, he needs to know that you and I believe enough in his work to listen to his hopes and plans."

Those who didn't make it to the meeting received a follow-up letter, urging them to contribute anyway.

"The reception for Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., was a great success," wrote Vanden Heuvel. "It gave us an unusual opportunity to discuss frankly the problems of race relations and civil rights with one of the great leaders of those fields. I am sorry your schedule did not permit you to be with us, but perhaps you will be interested in supporting Dr. King's work by contributing to the American Foundation on Nonviolence. The need is urgent."

Shortly after this fund-raising affair, Dr. King issued a public statement endorsing Sen. Kennedy's stand on Vietnam in opposition to President Johnson's.

Note — Walter Reuther, former civil rights supporter of Dr. King, has advised against demonstrations this summer on the ground that they have become counter-productive and now hurt more than help the civil rights cause.

God and War at Yale

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—This is the time of year when high school seniors are told what college they can attend, and when college seniors make their plans for graduate school and marriage, which is the most important graduate school of all. But this year it is different.

Yale University accepted 1,450 men out of 6,100 applicants this week for the freshman class in September, and filled the ranks of its graduate schools, but the military draft law is being changed and neither the new college freshmen nor the prospective graduate students really know where they stand. Yale has accepted them, but so may Uncle Sam, who demands priority even over Yale.

This makes a difference. The flowering rees are blooming in the college courtyards in New Haven as usual, but this lovely stone sanctuary is not as secure as usual. The men coming into Yale as undergraduates and the men going out of Yale no longer have the assurance that they will not be drafted into the army. So the conversation here is about the draft, the relationships of the student and the university to the nation in time of war.

It is exhilarating conversation. And disturbing. Anybody who thinks the anti-Vietnam protest movement is limited to the hooky fringe of weirdies and beards should come to Yale. This has never been a furnace of rebellion. It is supposed to be the Ivy League headquarters of the opulent squares; a respectable, traditional coaching school for future captains of industry and sub-cabinet officers in Washington. But it is obviously troubled these days, if not rebellious. In two days of conversation here, this reporter has not heard a single question sympathetic to the administration's policy in Vietnam, or to President Johnson. Among some of the leaders of the senior class there is a kind of melancholy acceptance of military service, but among the brilliant specialists of the junior and lower classes the spirit of anxious dissent is obvious.

They are asking two questions: Why should an increasingly secular or non-religious nation insist that a religious and pacifist conviction be the only legal justification for avoiding military service? And why must a man be against all wars of any kind in order to be excused from risking his life in a particular war, meaning Vietnam?

This produces some anxious philosophic and legal discussion in New Haven. For example, even the president of Yale, Kingman Brewster, is arguing that an ethical objection to killing should be accepted as a legal "conscientious objection" to military service. He favors draft immunity not only for pacifist believers in God, but for "believers in God or some equivalent thereof."

Also, while the president of Yale believes all student deferments should be abolished, he insists that a man should be free to refuse to serve in a particular war—Vietnam for example—without having to declare that he is against all wars, all killing on religious grounds, under any or all circumstances.

Yale is not only arguing about these things, but some of the undergraduate leaders here, notably Strobe Talbott, the thoughtful young chairman of the Yale news, are trying to get other university leaders of the country to organize in order to support a policy of non-religious immunity from service in particular wars.

It is interesting to talk to these serious and in general conservative young university leaders at Yale at a moment when the commander of the American Expeditionary Forces in Vietnam is saying in New York: "The magnificent men and women I command in Vietnam have earned the support of the American people."

"I do not want to help pilory the present administration," Talbott said here this week. "I am interested to see if there are new means and attitudes by which this university and hence the university community in general — can make discussion less polemical and more meaningful, and at the same time help the search for peace."

Yet, despite this generous youthful spirit, Talbott is obviously in troubled revolt against the policy of his government in Vietnam. General Westmoreland defined the war there as "a single all-pervading confrontation in which the fate of the people of Vietnam, the independence of the free nations of Asia and the future of the emerging nations, as well as the reputation and the very honor of our country are at stake."

The Strobe Talbotts at Yale—serious, idealistic, patriotic, progressive Republican types—might be expected to be the first to respond to General Westmoreland's noble appeal, but they don't. They are not marching in the anti-Vietnam parades, but they are dissenting, and the dissent of this clean-cut, solemn, middle-class crowd of campus leaders may be much more important than the sign-carrying protestors on the front pages.

General Westmoreland said in New York this week that he was "dismayed" by what he called "recent unpatriotic acts at home." But his problem is not with the comparatively small group of public sign-carriers. It is with the moderate middle-class characters at such non-revolutionary places as Yale, who want to believe, but simply do not accept, the administration's or General Westmoreland's explanation of the war.

JIM BISHOP

'What Then Is Time?'

There are more than a billion clocks in the world and no one has ever been able to define time. Fifteen centuries ago, Aurelius Augustinus said: "What then is time? If someone asks me, I know. If I wish to explain it to someone who asks, I know not."

Bishop

The new Random House Dictionary requires 1,530 words to explain the word in 67 separate attempts. One of them intones: "A system or method of measuring or reckoning the passage of time." But what is time?

It rules our lives. It's the thing on which we ride from the cradle to the grave. The component parts of time are past, present and future. Of the three, the past is irretrievably gone, the present will not last the length of a breath, and the future never arrives. Samuel A. Goudsmith and Robert Claiborne, in a book called "Time," call the clock the deputy of the sun and the stars, but even that does not define the word.

The human pulse is a good timekeeper, unless illness or excitement alters its beat. Time is something no one ever touched, and yet everyone can save it or waste it. It can be seen in the rise of the sun, the fall of the moon, a face, a house, a vehicle, a baby's tooth.

The first ticking clocks had one hand, denoting the hour. Man arbitrarily decided that 24 turns of the clock would be enough to denote the lapse of one day. Then he decided to cut the interval finer, so he invented the minute hand. This chopped his hour into 60 parts, and had no relation to the original 24.

Nor was this sufficient. The second hand sliced the minute into 60 equal parts. When he learned how precious each tick was, man became enslaved by his invention. Scientists began to cut the seconds into thousandths, then millionths.

To the physicist, time is one part of a three-legged crutch. The other two are mass and distance. To the philosopher, time is sorrow in intervals. To the youth, it is something that goes on forever. To the poet, it's a morning glory dead at noon. To the old man, it is something that slipped through his fingers. To the woman in labor, it is something that has momentarily stopped.

For hundreds of centuries, time defeated man because he could not remember all of his experiences. He triumphed over the past, which is time, when he learned to write. Writing became a memory symbol of the past. As a tool, it was magical, but he had to think of time in terms of epochs. Experience had to be related to seasons, to days, to tides, to moons new or full or waning.

Originally, he had appreciated the seasons. He knew when to plant, when to wait, when to reap. This gave him a crude calendar. But when he began to keep subdividing time to the irreducible, he began to understand time without ever learning how to define it.

Only an infant lives in the present. It knows no past, divines no future. A few years later, he has only a rudimentary conception of time: "When it is dark, I go to bed. When it is morning, I have my cereal." Diderot, the philosopher, thought of time in a most sophisticated manner: "Work shortens our days and lengthens our lives."

The human brain contains a clock that will put a man to sleep at a proper moment and wake him up too. However, under stress, he smoothes the clock. As a witness, in court, he is asked to estimate one minute of time. In the silence, he fidgets, studies the faces hostile and friendly, and says "Now" 40 or 45 seconds later. A lady being kissed by her beloved could be as far off true time in the opposite direction.

A family can test its appreciation of time by using one foot length of paper for each member, regardless of age. The left edge represents birth, the right edge is now. Make a mark where a year ago stands, where five years ago stands, where elementary school ended, and the first day of school. Divide the 16ths of an inch on a ruler into the number of years each participant has lived, and see what the time tolerance is.

Every living thing is a slave to time. The cells and organs of a body keep better time than the person. They do the right thing in the right amount at the right time, or they perish. No one has to tell a thorny bush that it requires root nourishment before it can bud a rose. It knows.

What, precisely, is time? I wish I knew. . .

"... Time for the next event . . . !"

A General, Not a Moses

(c) N. Y. Times News Service NEW YORK — In his speech at an Associated Press luncheon here this week, Gen. William C. Westmoreland probably dispelled any lingering notions in the minds of Republican professionals or the so-called "eastern establishment" that he could be the Moses who might lead them out of the political wilderness next year.

It was not just that the stalwart general, looking every inch a hero in his trim uniform bedecked with what appeared to be yards of ribbons, disavowed any "political intentions, ambitions or aspirations" and volunteered to stay in Vietnam as long as he was needed there. Firmer denials than his have been outflanked on the bloody battlefields of American politics.

Nor was it just that, unlike other soldiers who have triumphed at the ballot box, General Westmoreland has yet to win a war and come home a conqueror.

It was certainly not that Westmoreland displayed any lack of those personal qualities that supply the appealing "image" a politician desperately needs in the age of television. He was handsome, patriotic (he acknowledged his standing ovation with a salute), forceful, at no loss for words or syntax in answering questions extemporaneously, and displayed footwork he might have learned from Richard Nixon when dealing with such touchy political questions as his own future and whether or not he was being allowed to "win the war" by the dastardly bureaucrats of Washington.

All in all, anyone who remembers the disarming first political appearance of one Dwight D. Eisenhower, in the rain at Abilene, Kansas, in 1952, might well conclude that the new military star had showed more promise and more poise in his debut.

But the trouble with Westmoreland as a 1968 presidential candidate began before he even entered the Waldorf-Astoria, where publishers and editors were gathering to hear him. Peace demonstrators had gathered in the rain across Park Avenue, perhaps not in the numbers that President Johnson might have drawn, but in good voice and considerable vigor.

The trouble increased as the general spoke to a reverently hushed audience. He strenuously denied the favorite thesis of Vietnamese dissenters, that the war is a civil conflict in which the United States has unjustly interfered. He praised Johnson's "courageous decision" to intervene and "stay the course" and referred to his "sound military policies." He denied any serious shortages of men or material, made no particular plea for more troops (although he plainly suggested that he would need them), and in praising the South Vietnamese government and army even compared the latter to the American continental army of revolutionary days.

He argued against the idea of a cease-fire, since he claimed it would give military advantage to a clandestine and unprincipled enemy, and he spoke bitterly of "recent unpatriotic acts here at home."

After this, it is hard to see how Westmoreland could be taken seriously by anyone as a presidential candidate. He obviously slammed the door hard on any group that might somehow have conceived of him as a "peace candidate," and the demonstrators on Park Avenue made it plain how little credibility he could have in that role.

On the other hand, the general forthrightly refused to question or criticize the political direction of the war in Washington and spoke with approval of the "national policy to confine this war to a limited war."

Westmoreland was equally discouraging to any starry-eyed political manager who might have been imagining him as a candidate on an easy-victory, or Curtis Lemay, platform. "I do not see any end of the war in sight," the general said, and predicted "bitter fighting in the days to come."

In one brief hour, therefore, the Vietnamese commander closed all the avenues down which he might have plunged in pursuit of the presidency—as Lyndon Johnson probably knew he would when he encouraged him to return to the United States.

A southerner, a soldier all his adult life, a virtual unknown in any but his present inconclusive role, a man whose views on anything but the Vietnamese war are a public blank, Westmoreland could scarcely run as anything but a popular general. And as a general, he probably tied himself too firmly to Lyndon Johnson's policy for even the biggest powers of the Republican party to tear him away.

As for the first time there is a show of confidence in a Republican chief executive, albeit perhaps a timid confidence. It doesn't by any stretch of the imagination mean they are deserting the Democratic ship, but rather are at least willing to be piped aboard the GOP scow for a look-see if nothing else.

"We're not the least bit concerned about Governor Shafer," commented State AFL-CIO President Harry Boyer during the annual AFL-CIO Convention in Philadelphia earlier in the month. "We don't feel he has been anything less than sincere."

A report to the convention at the time noted that "the victorious candidate won election by campaigning not in the traditional GOP manner but rather as a liberal candidate who promised to do much for the people in general and those who toll in particular."

The report also noted that Governor Shafer "has been trying" to keep his campaign prom-

Lock Up Savings Rates Now

The interest rates you can earn on savings in financial institutions — a commercial bank special account, a savings & loan association, a savings bank — are on the way down the nation over. Increasing numbers of the financial institutions are quietly withdrawing their offers to pay 5 per cent or more on savings; are shortening the period of time they guarantee the high rates; are stiffening their regulations on payment of compound interest.

If you have savings you want to put away in liquid form for the long-term, these are the days in which to shop for the most attractive terms to you and to "lock up" your savings.

If you are confident that you can lock up your savings for a protracted period, these are the days in which to seek the institution offering you the most attractive terms for the longest period feasible for you and to accept the contract.

The pattern for lower interest rates on so-called consumer savings has been developing for months. It is now so unmistakable that there is a premium on your quick, decisive action to protect a rich return before it becomes generally unavailable.

There are three major forces behind the changed pattern of interest rates on savings:

(1) The Federal Reserve System has been aggressively pursuing a policy designed to make credit easier and cheaper to get in order to revive the economy in general and housing in particular. As a result of its activities, interest rates in the basic money and bond markets of the U. S. have fallen markedly from the peaks of late 1966 and the new lower levels are spreading out.

(2) Savings have been flowing back to financial institutions in an all-time record volume as consumers have increased their rate of saving. As a result, financial institutions no longer feel the need to woo your savings with rich interest payments — and, in fact, they are increasingly reluctant to "freeze" themselves into a position of paying the rich rates for a long period.

(3) The slowdown in economic growth has contributed to a slowdown in the pace of rise in demand for business loans. As a result of a slowdown in demand for money on top of an increase in the supply of money, the price of (interest rate on) money has "naturally" softened.

The discount rate — the pivotal U. S. interest rate around which all other interest rates revolve — has been cut from 4½ to 4 per cent. The prime rate — the rate demanded by banks from the highest credit risks in the nation — has been reduced from 6 to 5½ per cent. The rates the U. S. Treasury is paying investors on loans to refund its old IOUs and raise new cash for the federal government are well below the historic 1966 highs — and the same goes for rates paid by corporations and municipalities for funds in the open market. While the trend toward lower interest rates in the money and bond markets has now slowed — as both borrowers and lenders test the new levels — the impact on consumer savings rates is just starting to be felt.

Surely you have noticed the dwindling in recent weeks in the volume of newspaper ads trumpeting the payment of juicy rates for a guaranteed period of time.

The key angle for you is not just the actual current rate offered for your savings. Key angles also are the length of time the rate is guaranteed and the frequency with which your interest is compounded.

If your savings are only short-term and you expect to withdraw them for planned purchases in coming months, stay with the best rates you can and preserve your privilege of withdrawal on demand without a rate penalty.

But if yours are truly long-term savings, shop for the institution offering you the best rate deal for the longest term which fits your needs, lock up the guarantee — and do it now.

Lindbergh Plane Goes Abroad; With Some Help

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP)—A replica of Charles A. Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" will be flown to France to commemorate the 40th anniversary of his historic trans-Atlantic flight.
But with a little help.
The plane, bearing parts of five old Curtiss-Wright J5B engines, will be loaded aboard a big cargo plane.
Not that it can't fly.
Frank Tallman, owner of Tallmantz Aviation Co., who took the plane for a test flight at the Orange County Airport, said it handled perfectly during a 15-minute flight.
Once the plane arrives in France Tallman will pilot it to Le Bourget Air Field, where Lindbergh ended his famous flight on May 11, 1927.

POLITICAL ADVERTISING

OBSERVATIONS . . . by Bob Walsh

O.E.O. NOT AN ISSUE

I believe it is unfortunate that the Office of Economic Opportunity is being made an issue in the current county commissioner political campaign through the constant use of Commissioner Mead's name and negative statements relative to the OEO local office in "news" stories. The office is not basically a responsibility of the county which is providing no more than utilities and one unused room in a polling house.
A letter to the legislative representatives in Washington in which they are apprised of the local financial operations of the OEO will not provide them with information of which they are not fully aware. If this were not so there would not be a sub-committee engaged in a study of the War on Poverty Program.
I doubt if there is a county commissioner candidate qualified for the office who opposes steps to eliminate poverty. If he is a true Republican in the current sense of the word he may not be happy with the results of the program, but he is more apt to seek ways in which it can be improved rather than eliminated.
Let us face some facts. We do have poverty, and we do have difficulties obtaining our proportional share of federal contributions budgeted for various services and facilities. There are about 170 bureaus in Washington from which such funds can be obtained.
Both Republicans and Democrats are seeking ways to facilitate the allocation of federal funds for local use. But while they make their studies and put them into effect, we must live with the 170 bureaus and their snarls of red tape.

POLITICAL ADVERTISING

One of the first efforts to reach the local level is the OEO. Through this office, staffed by people who have local knowledge and sympathy for area problems, and supported by a lay council consisting of local residents, we have a channel through which to present our needs to various federal and state agencies.
I do not think that this office is the final solution. Nor do I believe that any other county commissioner candidate is of that opinion, including the Democratic hopefuls. But it is the first step and we must live with it until improvements materialize.
One tendency we must avoid is the attempt to measure the results with dollar bills. The office is too new for a practical application of that nature, but more important, how can you measure services with a budgetary slide rule?
Since we have become aware that infant minds can be trained to learn, efforts have been made to direct those young minds in a way that will produce more highly qualified students than has been the case in the past. How can you measure the results?
You might spend $50,000 to give a relatively small group of children an adequate educational boost, with the result that two decades from now there would be several among them who would pay us back a millionfold. This might be on the local level through their contribution to our own area industries, or it might be on the national level in our constant competition with the brains of other countries.

POLITICAL ADVERTISING

The War on Poverty Program is too new and too crude to be judged. It obviously is not sufficiently financed, and in such a situation you may find more spent on establishing offices and getting the program rolling than you will spend on services.
I doubt if the Vietnam war is an excuse for not helping the impoverished to help themselves in our own nation. If we can help strangers in Southeast Asia with money and blood, we can help our own with finances.
Let us also realize that we will not obtain financial help for education, housing, and the employable unless we on the local level organize for the purpose of receiving such funds. If the administrative costs exceed the amounts spent on projects, who is to blame? Have our communities made the most of the proffered assistance?
There are, of course, some major projects being readied, such as low-income housing for the elderly. Give the OEO office another year or two and perhaps the balance sheet will be more pleasing to those who deal in figures at election time.
This may not be the best way to obtain our Washington funds, but it is our regional office and by having it we will be represented when improvements and changes result. If it does not succeed, its own failure will terminate its existence.

Cardinals' Al Jackson One-Hits Houston, 4-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Al Jackson pitched a one-hitter for the St. Louis Cardinals in shutting out the Houston Astros 4-0 last night.

It was the first one-hitter in the National League and the third in the majors this season. Two American Leaguers, Boston's Bill Rohr and Baltimore's Steve Barber, did it earlier.

Jackson, a left-hander traded to the Cardinals by the New York Mets, had his no-hitter spoiled when Bob Aspromonte led off the eighth inning with a line single to left. He retired the last six batters in a row to hand Houston its ninth straight defeat.

Jackson, who issued three bases on balls, got all the runs he needed on Tim McCarver's two-run homer in the second inning.

Baltimore beat California 2-1 and kept the Angels from regaining first place from the New York Yankees who had walloped the Chicago White Sox 11-2 in a day game. Frank Robinson's triple followed by Brooks Robinson's single accounted for the Orioles' winning run in the sixth.

Steve Hargan pitched Cleveland to a 1-0 triumph over Minnesota with a two-hitter for his second straight shutout. Hargan also scored the only run of the game in the sixth with an infield single. Vic Davallillo's double and Max Alvis' sacrifice fly.

In other games, Detroit blanked Kansas City 5-0 on Joe Sparma's five-hitter. Pittsburgh whipped Philadelphia 7-3 as Willie Stargell drove in four runs, including a homer with one on and Boston routed Washington 9-3.

The Yankees took over first place in the AL with a six-run explosion in the fifth inning against the White Sox.

The six runs broke a 2-2 tie and were produced by four singles, Charley Smith's double, two walks, a wild pitch and an error.

Whitey Ford went the distance for his second victory against one loss and added two singles to the Yanks' 17-hit attack. Smith also had another double and two singles.

Rookie Tom Seaver of the New York Mets picked up his second victory in two decisions when he singled and scored in the 10th inning for a 2-1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

The Cubs had tied the game in the ninth when Don Kessinger scored from second base on shortstop Ken Harrelson's error with two out. New York had scored in the sixth, Jerry Grote's single sending home Ron Swoboda.

Leafs Nip Montreal In Overtime Battle

TORONTO (AP) — Bob Pulford's goal at 8:26 of the second sudden-death overtime period gave Toronto a 3-2 victory over Montreal 1 a s t night and a 2-1 lead in their Stanley Cup final playoff series.

The fourth game in the best-of-7 series will be played in Toronto tomorrow night.

Pulford's goal, with assists from Pete Stemkowski and Jim Pappin, came after the clubs had battled through two scoreless periods, with Montreal's rookie goalie Rogation Vachon and Toronto's 42-year-old Johnny Bower turning away shot after shot.

Montreal had fought back to a 2-2 tie with just 50 seconds left in the second period on John Ferguson's goal, which came off Stemkowski's stick just after a faceoff to the left of Bower.

Pappin had given the Leafs a 2-1 edge at 10:34 of that period, taking a pass from Tim Horton before Montreal could clear the puck out of a scramble.

The period was marked by rugged play and both Brian Conacher of Toronto and Claude Larose of Montreal drew five minute penalties for fighting. Larose suffered a cut during the scramble, which needed seven stitches. He remained in the game, however.

The opening score came with just 2:27 gone in the first period when with Horton in the penalty box, Jean Beliveau took a pass at the goal from Bobby Rousseau and pushed it in for a 1-0 Montreal lead.

But with Ferguson off the ice for interference, the Maple Leafs mounted a power play that succeeded when Stemkowski tipped in a sizzling drive from just inside the blue line by Larry Hillman at 8:39.

The third period and the first overtime were played at a slower pace than the first two, with neither team able to capitalize on several good shots at the goal. A shot from the open by Ron Ellis of the Leafs shortly after the five-minute mark of the third period hit the post and rebounded away.

Dragons, Eagles Triumph in Track Townville's Team Falls To Sheamen

Brigsmen Trounce Beavers by 122-28

By LARRY G. STEELE
Sports Editor
Warren Area High School's track and field team served notice yesterday that they plan to retain the Section II Championship by routing Corry, the first conference foe met this season, 122-28 on the Dragon oval.

The Beavers, led by big Fred Corbett, lived up to advance billing in the weight events, but couldn't compete with the Blue and White on the cinders or in the jumping events.

In his record to 4-0, the Dragons gave up only eight points of a possible 87 in the running events and maintained an edge in the field, scoring 43 points to 20 for the Beavers.

Sophomore speedster Joe Cauley and junior Jim Beichner led the assault for the locals with a pair of first places each. Cauley took both the 100-yard dash and the 200, posting an excellent 10.5 in the century considering the condition of the track, and broke the tape at 24 seconds flat in the latter race. He also ran the first leg of the winning 880-yard relay team to personally account for 11 1/4 of the Dragons' points.

Beichner again reigned as king of the long and triple jumps, hitting a season high of 20'2 3/4" in the former and hop, step and jumping to 40'10".

Gerry Grygo, a senior transfer student from Erie who's considered by Dragon head coach Loyal Briggs as one of his hardest working boys, posted his first victory in a Blue and White uniform in winning the half mile. Grygo nipped teammate Pan Fanartits at the tape with a 2:13.8 clocking and Wayne McCartney of the Dragons finished third in one of seven sweeps during the day for Warren.

Dave Cobb, Larry Maxwell and Fanartits ran 1-2-3 for the Dragons in the mile run, Cobb winning in 4:48.7 and Warren's top trio in the two-mile, Bill Shaffer, Jim Oriole and Al Poust, made the meet's longest event a runaway. Shaffer, still undefeated at the distance, finished 200 yards ahead of teammate Oriole in a fine 10:35.

With Cauley leading the way, Warren also took all three places in the shorter dashes. Chris Lytle, another sophomore, and Tim Donovan followed Cauley across the line in the century and Harry Spackman and Rex Slocum trailed him in the 220.

The Dragons added all three places in two field events. Beichner, John Zawacki and Steve Zwald dominated the long jump and Steve Beyer came through with another first in the pole vault, with Rick Nassman and Jeff Hunter tying for second place. Beyer's winning vault was 11'6".

Marc Segel was edged for first place in the 120-yard high hurdles by Tom Bulard, the Beavers' only winner on the cinders, but came back to take the lows in 22.2 in a tie for first with teammate Lytle.

Danny O'Neill outspurred Ray Lowe in the quarter mile in a 56 flat clocking to account for another victory on the cinders.

John Zawacki again took his specialty, the high jump, on a 5'6" leap with Mike Hackett and Nasman tying for third and Dan Stimmel sailed the javelin 152'11 1/2" for the winning distance in that event.

The Dragons also captured all three relay events.

Strongman Corbett copped two first places for the Beavers to rank as their top point-getter. He heaved the shot 56'7 1/2", far below the 59-foot mark he's spun the discuss 134'11 1/2" to beat out Warren's Mike Bleech.

Friday, the Dragons host Oil City, considered to be Warren's leading opposition in the conference. The Oilers own victories over Corry and Youngsville.

Tonight the Blue and White thinclads will participate in a clinic for the benefit of Dragon parents and fans. Slated to start at 8 p.m. in the WAHS gym, the clinic will be conducted by Coaches Briggs and Andy Randas.

ME AND MY SHADOW

Only Joe Cauley's shadow beats him across the finish line as he breathes the tape to capture the 100-yard dash in a time of 10.5 at yesterday's track and field meet between Warren and Corry. The sophomore speedster also won the 220-yard dash and ran the first leg on the Dragon 880-yard relay team that whipped the Beavers to take high-point honors for the Blue and White in the 122-28 romp. Swanson Hurls Against Erie Vincent Today

Roy "No-Hit" Swanson will be on the mound today when Warren Area High School's baseball team hosts Erie Strong Vincent at 4 p.m. at War Memorial Field.

The Dragon fireballer has been well rested since his no-hitter against Meadville last week, but has not been able to get much of a workout in because of the inclement weather.

Coach Bob Kucher will start the same lineup that defeated the Bulldogs in the season opener, 2-0.

The Dragon mentor said last night that, after a little work yesterday, the local diamond is in shape for the contest.

Gary Carter, Youngsville discus man, closes his eyes and grits his teeth upon releasing the discus. Yesterday he threw it 150 feet 7 inches. This mark brought him within three feet of the school record set last year by Mike Mitchell. Carter, an all-around athlete, has won a football scholarship to Penn State University. The Eagles won the meet with Townville yesterday by a 91 1/2 to 58 1/2 score. (Photo by Steele)

Another Former Winner Defeated in N-S Tourney

By KEN ALYTA
AP Sports Writer

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Left-hander Glynn Perkins upset former champion Dale Morey on the 20th hole and Dr. Ed Updegraff was four under par in trimming John Guenther 5 and 3 to share the spotlight yesterday in the second round of the North and South Men's Amateur Golf Tournament.

Walker Cup players Bill Campbell, Jack Leis, Bob Murphy and Jim Grant, who meet the British next month at Sandwich, England, also won to lead the way into today's double round schedule.

Joining them were former champions Bill Hyndman, Frank Stataci and Charlie Smith.

Perkins, 37-year-old government engineer from Virginia

Beach, Va., knocked in an 18-foot birdie putt on the second extra hole to beat Morey, veteran campaigner from High Point, N.C. The winner was four over par.

Perkins lost a two-hole lead when Morey swept five in a row starting at No. 6 with four pars and a birdie. But Morey bogeyed 11, 13 and 14 to even the match, and lost 15 to a Perkins birdie.

Morey birdied 16 and 17 to regain the lead, only to bogey 18.

Updegraff, 45-year-old two-time Walker Cup player from Tucson, Ariz., played the best golf of the tournament in beating Gunther of Reading, Pa.

Each was out in 33, three under par, with Updegraff 1-up. Gunther had squared the match by holing out a 125-yard 9-iron shot on the 374-yard seventh hole for an eagle 2. Then he lost the eighth hole when Updegraff birdied from 18 feet.

Pars on 11 and 14 put Updegraff 4-up and he won the short 15th with a conceded seven-foot birdie.

Campbell, from Huntington, W. Va., was two over par in a 4 and 3 victory over Vern Novak of College Park, Md., after turning 1-up.

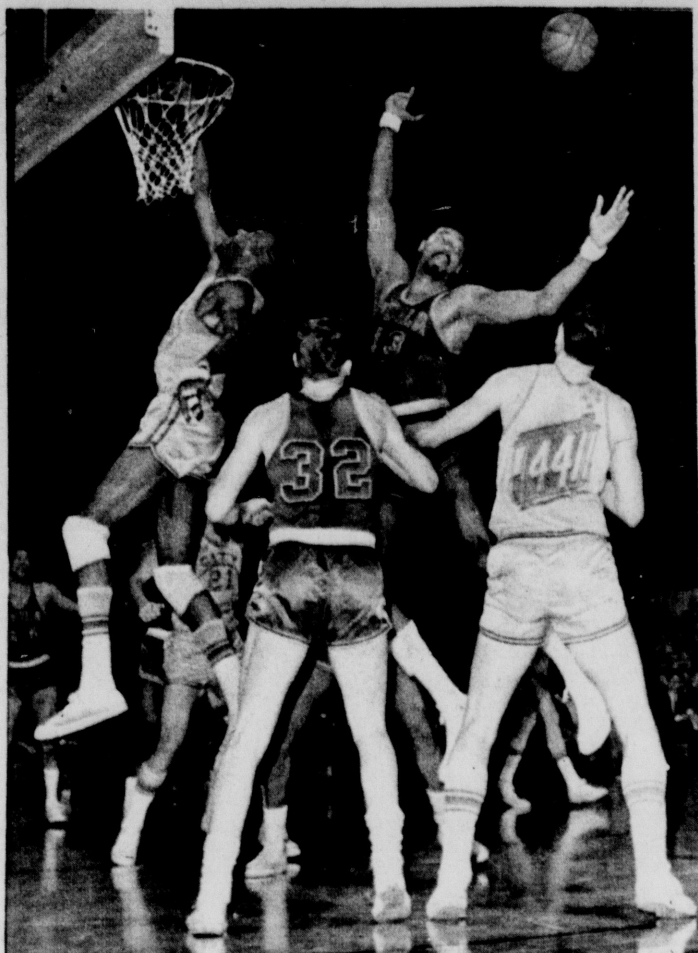

Murphy, of Nichols, Fla., having trouble with his irons, was five over par as he eliminated Tom Ramey of Little Rock, Ark., 5 and 3.

Lewis, from Florence, S.C., survived a shaky start to beat Dave Ojala, 1966 Public Links runner-up from Two Harbors, Minn., 5 and 3, with two over par play.

Jim Grant of Wethersfield, Conn., held off a late bid by Jack Crisp of Charlotte, N.C., to win 2-up. Grant was four over par of 72 for the No. 2 course of the Pinehurst Country Club, a 7,000-yarder.

Charlie Smith of Gastonia, N.C., was four over par in his 2 and 1 victory over Truman Connell of Boynton Beach, Fla.

Jay Baumgardner of Bristol, Tenn., who upset defending champion Ward Wetli after in the opening round, lost 3 and 1 to the four over par play of Morris Becroft of Newport News, Va.

FORGET SOMETHING?

Everyone seems to know where the basketball is except Nate Thurmond of the San Francisco Warriors, who is dunking his own imaginary ball in Monday night's NBA game. Led by Wilt Chamberlain (13) and Billy Cunningham (32), the Philadelphia 76ers rallied in the final period to defeat the Warriors, 125-122 to win the NBA championship. (See story at right)

Hannum, Sharman Talk 76ers' Dynasty in NBA

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "You have to look to the 76ers for the next few years," declared Coach Bill Sharman of the San Francisco's Warriors. "They will be tough to beat."

So a Philadelphia dynasty powered by 7-foot 1-inch Wilt Chamberlain looms on the professional basketball picture. The 76ers, having ended the reign of Boston's Celtics, took the National Basketball Association crown by beating San Francisco 125-122 Monday night.

miss and have Nate Thurmond rebound.

With 15 seconds left, Rick Barry lined up a shot. Chamberlain loomed in front and Barry's shot went awry. That ended the Warriors' hopes.

The free throw line proved the big difference, Philadelphia hitting 41 from there and the Warriors only 22.

Chamberlain scored 24 points, grabbed 23 rebounds and time after time blocked or forced San Francisco shots.

Nat Thurmond, his 6-11 adversary, scored 12 and grabbed 22 rebounds.

Barry led the scorers with 44 but Wally Jones hit for 27 and sent the 76ers off fast with 16 in the first quarter. Walker wound up with 20. Jeff Mullins had 23 and Jim King 19 for the losers.

Hannum commented, "I think if you talk about dynasty in the next 10 years, the Warriors are the team to talk about."

Lawyers Pulling All Stops to Save Clay

By B.F. KELLUM
HOUSTON (AP) Lawyers for Cassius Clay told a federal judge yesterday the heavyweight champion never will submit to induction into the armed services.

U.S. Dist. Judge Allen B. Hannay also was asked in a 67-page petition to halt Clay's scheduled Friday induction and stay all actions in the case pending a full scale hearing at which time Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark and Gov. John Connally would be required to appear as witnesses.

The Supreme Court on Monday turned down similar pleas for the second time in eight days.

The new petition specifically asks the court to compel the district draft appeals board to change Clay from 1A to IV-4 classification as a minister of religion exempting him from all training in the service.

Clay, who calls himself Muhammad Ali, claims he is a Muslim minister.

"He devotes 160 hours a month to his ministerial duties," Covington told reporters. "Boxing is an incidental sideline to him."

In yesterday's action as injunction also is sought against Connally and other defendants so as to assure that Negroes of Texas be named to the draft board without discrimination based on race.

The petition alleges that statements by Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, head of the Selective Service System, and Rep. L. Mendell Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, have been prejudicial to Clay's claim for exemption.

The petition stated that Rivers, addressing a Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in New York Aug. 25, 1966, said: "If the theologian of Black Muslim power, Cassius Clay, is deferred by the board in Louisville you watch what happens in Washington...We are going to do something if that board takes your boy and leaves him (Clay) home to double talk."

The petition stated last January that Clay will fail in his attempt to be deferred from the draft.

Sports of The Times Arthur Daley Registering A Kick

(C) N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Once upon a time the only guys who kicked footballs in top level competition were genuine football players who also blocked, tackled and performed all the normal gridiron chores. Usually they were 60-minute operatives with the toughness and skills to function on both offense and defense. But nowadays the kicker doesn't have to be a real football player at all. He can be a specialist.

This was emphasized last week when the Dallas Cowboys concluded a 10,000-mile Kick Karavan in a country-wide search for undiscovered phenomena with a rare talent for applying foot to ball. No professional team has to go to such extremes for assembling the musclemen who fill out the roster and do the work. They are handpicked after exhaustive scrutiny and then ruthless attrition weeds out all but the best.

No longer does the kicker have to be a heavy duty performer who is part of the team. He can be a man apart and the only time he experiences rude contact is just before a roughing-the-kicker penalty. If you want a for instance, you merely need take a quick glimpse at the case histories of two men who scored 18 points in a game, Garo Yepremian and Jim Thorpe.

Who is Garo Yepremian? It's a good question and not many football fans could supply the answer. He is a multi-lingual Armenian who was born on the Mediterranean island of Cyprus and played some soccer there without distinction. After living in England for a half dozen years he came to the United States last June and walked into Tiger Stadium on Oct. 12 during a practice session of the Detroit Lions. So impressive was he in a kicking exhibition that the Lions signed him that very day despite the fact that he is 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighs only 155 pounds.

The first live action he saw was his own left foot kicking a ball in the opening play of a National Football League game. He was somewhat short of sensational. But a month later against the Minnesota Vikings he put on a show that bordered on the fantastic. He kicked field goals of varying yardage -- 33, 26, 15, 20, 28 and 33. If you count 'em up, they add to six, displacing the one-game record of five set by the mighty Ernie Nevers in 1926 and later matched by Bob Waterfield, Roger LeClair and Jim Bakken. Furthermore, the Lions defeated the Vikings, 32 to 31.

"What are you going to do about Yepremian?" an interviewer asked Norm Van Brocklin, the Minnesota coach.

"I'm thinking of having him deported as an undesirable alien," said Van, joking amid his tears.

And who was Jim Thorpe? No alien was he. His ancestors were here before Columbus because he was a Sac and Fox Indian. Not only was the noble Redman acclaimed in a poll as the greatest football player of the first half century but he was probably the greatest all-around athlete America ever produced -- a wondrous football player, a big league baseball outfielder, the winner of the Olympic Decathlon Championship in 1912 (later disqualified), a 70 golfer, a 200 bowler -- well, you name the sport. The big Indian could outperform anyone. He was the fictional Frank Merriwell come to life.

There was nothing he couldn't do on a gridiron. In a game against Lafayette, for example, his shortest punt measured 70 yards. But it was the Harvard game of 1911 which provided the stage and the scenario for his most incredible heroics. Proud Harvard had won the National Championship the year before and was loaded again, three-deep in manpower, when the Crimson faced the Carlisle Indians. The Redmen brought only 16 players to Cambridge. But one was Thorpe. It was enough.

The Crimson horde swept easily for a touchdown. Then Jim began to slash off tackle and pound the middle. Thrice he carried the ball into scoring range and kicked field goals of 23, 45 and 37 yards. To the vast astonishment and dismay of the Harvards, the little Indian school led at the half, 9 to 6. The indignant Cantabs stormed back for a touchdown and a field goal for a 15-9 lead. At the next kickoff Thorpe walked over to his quarterback, Gus Welch.

"Gimme the ball," said Big Jim.

They gave him the ball for nine straight plays. On the ninth he rocked over the goal line for a touchdown. The score was tied. Harvard knew it had the Tiger by the tail and was ready to settle for the tie. Thorpe was not. He led a one-man assault but ground was yielded more grudgingly. It was fourth down on the 43.

"Set the ball up," growled Thorpe. "I'll kick a field goal."

"From midfield?" asked Welch.

"Yes, from midfield," snarled Jim.

So he kicked a 50-yarder to win the game, 18 to 15, in one of football's most stunning and memorable upsets. The big Indian had scored every point, 18 in all. But Yepremian also had an 18-point day. Is there any comparison between them as football players? Don't even waste your breath in answering.

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS:

Indy 500 Practice Runs Get Started on Weekend

By DALE BURGESS
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—The long buildup for the $700,000 Memorial Day auto race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway will begin Saturday with a traditional scramble to get the first car out for practice.

Training sessions before the 51st running of the May 30 500-mile motor classic probably will be even more frantic than usual, due to a record field of 90 entries and a record class of 23 "rookies" who will have to take 100-mile-long tests.

Previous highs were 84 entries in 1958 and 20 new drivers in 1950.

"Rookies" is hardly the word for the newcomers, all veterans of high speed competition on other tracks, but it's the official term at the 59-year-old Hoosier racing plant. They will include such ranking pilots of the world Grand Prix road racing circuit as Lorenzo Bandini, Pedro Rodriguez, Lucien Bianchi, Jochen Rindt, Dennis Hulme and Chris Amon.

The Grand Prix contingent has produced the last two Indianapolis winners, Jimmy Clark of Scotland in 1965 and Graham Hill of England last year.

The newcomers will run 10 laps each at 130, 135, 140 and 145 m.p.h. with a committee of veteran drivers deciding whether they are ready for the 2 1/2-mile, treacherous asphalt track.

Even drivers with Indianapolis experience will be held to a speed limit of 155 m.p.h. for the first two days. The lid will be lifted after the track picks up the thin layer of tire rubber which gives a better grip than the raw surface left by winter rains and snow.

The 90 entries will be cut to 33 starters in time trials May 15, 16, 22 and 23.

The 1966 starting field averaged a record 160,251 m.p.h. for the 10-mile qualifying runs, topped by the 165,899 of Mario Andretti, Italian-born U.S. Auto Club champ the last two years. Andretti, whose engine broke a valve in the actual race, again will be the favorite this year. He wrecked his 1966 car at Phoenix early this month but came back to win the Trenton 150 last Sunday in a new Brawner-Ford.

Little Mario, who can drive anything, also this year has won the Daytona Beach 500-mile stock car race and teamed with Bruce McLaren of New Zealand to win the Sebring 12-hour race for Grand Prix vehicles.

The Speedway now says it has 200,000 reserved seats with an addition to the big steel-and-concrete stands along the main straightaway and first turn.

The track guarantees only a $150,000 purse, with $40,000 for first place, but increases it according to the unannounced attendance. The 1966 payoff was $691,808, of which Hill picked up $156,297 for himself and car owner John Mecom Jr., of Houston, Tex.

Annual Olean Rally Entries Still Open

OLEAN, N.Y. — The Allegheny Valley Sports Car Association and the Quaker State Oil Refining Corp., joint sponsors of the Southern Tier Four Sports Car Rally, announced yesterday one of the most comprehensive trophy lists ever offered for any sports car event. Seventy-six trophies worth over $500 will be awarded to the competitors in the 7th annual running of this event May 6th.

Recognized as one of the East's leading rallies, it is expected this year's rally will attract over 100 teams. To eleven competition this year, a special class has been added for rallyists who do not own or wish to use the more complicated rally equipment. Special trophies will be awarded for this unequipped class. Another new award will go to the best all woman team. In addition to all these trophies, the winners of the rally will be presented a key to the city of Olean.

Official headquarters for the rally will be the Olean House Hotel. Registration and technical inspection will be from 6-10 p.m. Friday, May 5th and from 6-8:00 a.m. Saturday May 6th. The rally will start and finish in Olean. The days' running will be climaxed with an awards banquet at the Olean House.

Rallymaster, Jan Bralts, of Friendship, N.Y., emphasized that although entries are rapidly coming in, there is still time to enter. Interested competitors should write to: Mrs. Miranda Bralts, 20 Maple ave. Friendship, N.Y. Entries will close May 5th.

England Has New Grand Prix Racer

LONDON (AP) — Ford of Britain unveiled yesterday a 2993 c.c. formula engine with which it hopes to win the 1967 Grand Prix auto racing championship.

Supposed to develop in excess of 400 horsepower, the engine will power Lotus cars to be driven by two former world champions, Scot Jim Clark and Londoner Graham Hill. Colin Chapman, of Indianapolis fame, will be in charge of the team.

It will mark Ford's first entry into the Grand Prix field although in recent years the factory has swept all before it in the stock car, sports car and formula two competitions.

The big feature of the new fuel injection engine is that it forms a part of the car construction. The rear suspension and the body of the racer hangs around the power plant rather than in the conventional way of the engine fitting into a car.

The engine is the result of a $280,000 investment by Ford of Britain in the motorsport since 1965.

Ford hopes to try the unit on the track shortly but doesn't anticipate it being ready before the Dutch Grand Prix on June 4.

Player's Golf Tips Starting

"Gary Player's Golf Class" starts today in the TMO with instructions on the grip of the club.

The feature will appear periodically throughout the spring and summer months, with Player covering all phases of the game.

Gov. Maddox Will Help All Voters

By WALTER RUGABER
(c) N.Y. Times News Service

ATLANTA—The doors had been officially closed for more than an hour, but Gov. Lester G. Maddox was still in his office signing a stack of letters when the telephone rang one night recently.

The governor's secretary identified the caller as a constituent from a small town in southeast Georgia. Maddox had never heard of the man and it was quite late, but after a moment's hesitation he took up the receiver.

"No, sir," the governor said. "No, sir. I'm sorry, I can't help you with that. No, sir. That's a problem for your local county government to handle. No, sir. That's between you and your lawyer and the people at the courthouse there."

When the conversation was over, Maddox explained solemnly to a visitor that the caller's wife had "run off and left him." When he couldn't get her to return, he went straight to the governor for help.

Maddox appeared to consider the call no more remarkable than had the man who placed it. Indeed, the governor informed his visitor that he would talk to anyone when he could and that he often took calls from obscure citizens.

The incident reflects an image that has emerged strongly in the first three months of Maddox's term. He has said repeatedly that he is determined to be the "little man's" governor, un beholden to any major political bloc.

At least some critics are distinctly nervous about the governor's apparent lack of ties to the state's established leaders. They consider it evidence of an unwillingness to accept sound advice and adopt consistent policies.

The critics have contended that the governor's concern for the "little man" is merely a pose to disguise what they consider severely limited administrative ability and a lack of real leadership in the state government.

Most observers, however, are withholding judgment. They are frankly puzzled about where the governor is headed, and the newspapers have begun to refer to "Maddoxology" as a new and quite necessary discipline.

Maddox never held public office prior to his election in January by the state legislature. He was chosen by that predominantly Democratic body after no candidate received a majority vote in last fall's election.

He had a well founded reputation nationally as a zealous white supremacist who chased away Negroes when they tried to integrate his fried chicken restaurant and who finally closed it rather than serve them.

His posture at the state capitol is important not only to the state's racial and governmental climate but also to the 1968 presidential ambitions of George C. Wallace, former governor of Alabama. Wallace wants southern support for a third-party campaign.

Martin Luther King Declares Not Presidential Candidate

By DON MCKEE
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. labeled the bombing of North Vietnam fighter bases a tragic escalation of the war and predicted yesterday that thousands of military inductees will go to jail rather than bear arms.

"This is a tragic escalation of the war," King said at a news conference which he called ostensibly to rule himself out as a presidential candidate next year.

He said the bombing would only make North Vietnam more determined, citing the Nazi bombing of Britain which only stiffened British resistance.

"The same thing is happening in Hanoi," King said. "They are going to continue to fight this war regardless of how great their losses may be."

In a prepared statement, King referred to published reports of groups urging him to run for President in 1968. He said he was surprised "by these sentiments and find it very hard to take them seriously."

King said he had no interest in running for office and issued the statement "to remove doubts of my position on this subject."

Seven Students Injured During College Protest

By BILL NEIKIRK
BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Seven Southern University students, manning a barricade in the second day of campus protests, suffered minor wounds yesterday from bullet fragments and flying asphalt chips.

The East Baton Rouge sheriff's office booked a campus night watchman with aggravated assault in connection with the shooting incident. He was identified as James Jones, 61, a Negro.

Deputies said Jones was leaving the predominantly Negro school on a bicycle when he confronted boycotting students at a barricade. The students encircled the guard. He told them to move on or he'd shoot, deputies said. The students chanted: "Shoot. Shoot. Shoot."

Three shots from a 30-30 Winchester Model 94 rifle bit into the asphalt sending bullet fragments and pavement chips flying. "I didn't mean to shoot anybody. I was just trying to scare them," Jones told a deputy.

Southern University, located just north of this city on high ground overlooking the Mississippi River, has been the scene of student protests for two days. The grievances center around administration refusal to rehire two white instructors for the next academic year and the suspension of associate Professor Charles Walker, a Negro.

Blockades were set up on the campus yesterday morning. Lionel Jones of New Orleans, said he drove through a blockade and a brick smashed through his windshield.

Jones said demonstrators rocked his car in an effort to turn it around. "I got through but look how I did it," pointing to his smashed windshield and a dent on the side of his car. Jones, a Negro, said he went to Southern to find out if his sister, a student, had been hurt in the shooting.

Several thousand students milled around the sprawling campus during the morning. By noon, student leaders and administration representatives huddled in a closed conference. Sam Mims, student president-elect, said the students had 24 major grievances. They included curfews, better infirmary equipment and permission for senior girls to operate cars on the campus.

Referring to the school's refusal to hire the white instructors fulltime, Mims said: "The university said they were not re-hired because it was a one year deal, but we believe there were other reasons."

Pittsburgh Pollution 'Dangerous'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh air pollution control chief Edward Stockton said yesterday that sulfur oxides in the Pittsburgh area regularly rise to levels which a federal report says can cause sickness and death.

Stockton said the areas where the pollution occasionally becomes most severe include suburban Clairton, Neville Island and Springdale, all communities with a heavy concentration of industry.

He said during one month in Clairton, tests showed peak levels of 1.8 parts sulfur oxide per million parts of air.

According to "Air Quality Criteria for Sulfur Oxides" issued by the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare, levels of .5 to 1 parts per million over a three-day period can mean a fourfold increase in the incidence of bronchitis.

The report says a sulfur oxide concentration of 1.6 for 10 minutes can cause trouble for emphysema and heart disease victims.

Peak periods of intense concentration plus a regular level of .015 means more people die or become ill with bronchitis, emphysema, heart disease and upper respiratory infections, according to the report.

The federal report showed the sulfur oxide content in the Pittsburgh area increased from .029 to .048 from 1959 to 1963 and has since wavered between .041 and .042. The figures were based on readings at 32 locations in Allegheny County.

Erie Pilot Dies in Crash In Germany

BITBURG, Germany (AP) — Two U.S. Air Force fliers, including one from Erie, Pa., have been killed in a crash of their F4D phantom jet fighter.

The Air Force said the craft plunged into a hillside Monday about 40 miles west of the East German border while on a routine training flight.

Lt. Albert F. Otteni, 24, of Erie was the plane's systems operator. The pilot, also killed, was Maj. John A. Cunningham, 40, of Esparto, Calif.

The Air Force said the plane, which had taken off from Bitburg Air Base near the Luxembourg border, was assigned to the 23rd Tactical Fighter Squadron, 36th Tactical Flight Wing.

2. What is the procedure for making investigations and granting aid? What are the rules of eligibility? How many needy aged are being helped? Has there been a marked change in number of persons receiving assistance in recent years? What is the average case load per worker and what authority establishes it?

A total of 210 were being helped at the time of the League of Women Voters interview. Of these, 98 are patients at the State Hospital, 52 in nursing homes, and 62 others at home.

The number has increased in the last three years because of more nursing home cases and the $15 monthly allowances to State Hospital patients.

The average caseload is 70 cases, established by the director. 3. What is the total amount of money available for each of these programs? How much of it comes from the federal government? From the state? From the county? What is the size of the average allowance?

The amount is not limited; the aim is to meet the needs. For Old Age Assistance in Warren County from July, 1965 to July, 1966 the total cost was $127,247. Of this the federal government paid $66,800; the state $60,447, and the county none. The size of the average monthly allowance was $95 per person.

4. What is the procedure for making investigations and granting aid? What are the rules of eligibility? How many are receiving assistance in each group? Has the number changed recently?

A. The Needy Blind: Procedure: The application for aid is discussed with the person. Sometimes a guardian is court appointed.

'Search for Peace' Stamp Design Announced

Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien made public yesterday the design of the Search for Peace commemorative postage stamp.

The 5-cent stamp will be issued July 5 at Chicago in conjunction with the convention there of Lions International. Deputy Postmaster General Frederick C. Belen will represent the Post Office Department at the first day ceremony.

As part of its 50th anniversary activities, Lions is sponsoring a "Search for Peace" essay contest for young men and women, and the commemorative postage stamp reflects the theme of this program. Awards in the $50,000 contest will be made during the convention. Young people, 14 to 22, from the more than 130 countries and geographical areas served by Lions, were invited to submit workable plans for world peace. Lions is the world's largest service club organization, with some 760,000 members.

Bradbury Thompson, of Riverside, Connecticut, designed the stamp. He also created the American Music issue of 1964. The horizontal Search for Peace Stamp will be printed in red, blue and black on granite paper. Inset in a circle of greyed tones is a white dove of peace, its beak clutching a sprig of laurel. On three lines to the left are "Search for," in blue, and "Peace," in red. Lower left, in blue, is "Lions International." Upper right, in red, is the denomination "5c." Vertical right, in blue, is "United States." The vignette is based on a signet appearing in "Symbols, Signs and Signets" compiled by Ernst Lahner and printed by World Publishing Company.

The stamp was modeled by Robert J. Jones and engraved by Joseph S. Creamer, Jr. (vignette) and William R. Burnell (lettering) of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. It will be printed in one pass through the Glori press. All stamps will be tagged.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Chicago, Illinois 60607. A close-fitting enclosure of postal card thickness should be placed in each envelope and the flap either turned in or sealed. The envelope to the Postmaster should be endorsed "FIRST DAY COVERS 5-CENT SEARCH FOR PEACE STAMP." Orders must not include requests for uncanceled stamps. Requests must be postmarked no later than July 5, 1967.

Bunker Arrives In Viet

By JONATHAN RANDAL

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
SAIGON — Ellsworth Bunker arrived here yesterday to take up his post as American ambassador less than five hours after the departure of his predecessor, Henry Cabot Lodge.

The synchronization of Lodge's departure and Bunker's arrival appeared to reflect a desire to stem rumors that the change in ambassadors—and in many American mission posts—also indicated a change in American policy in Vietnam.

Diplomatic usage dictates that the outgoing ambassador shall have left his post before his successor arrives. But this interval usually extends to several days. Almost six weeks have elapsed since President Johnson first announced Bunker's appointment.

The South Vietnamese speculated that Lodge's departure indicated the U.S. was willing to moderate the outgoing ambassador's support for Premier Nguyen Cao Ky in the forthcoming South Vietnam elections, although the U.S. government has adopted a hands-off attitude in the election.

"It's high time Bunker arrived," one American official said, "if only to stop all these rumors."

However, Vietnamese observers tended to be unmoved by such statements and some contrasted what they detected as different emphasis in Lodge's farewell remarks and Bunker's airport statement.

Lodge struck one of his most familiar notes when he said he believed the war would not be ended by negotiations but rather "with a fadeout" of Viet Cong strength as the war turned against them increasingly.

Bunker, while promising to continue assistance "with our won military strength as long as you are subject to aggression," stressed that "military power—important as it is—cannot alone provide any lasting answer to the real problems of Vietnam."

"The larger task will take longer," he said, "and will depend ultimately on the Vietnamese people themselves."

Asked whether he thought he could work the kind of reconciliation which had distinguished his mission in the Dominican Republic, Bunker said: "I hope that is possible." In his prepared statement he also mentioned that "we look beyond this harsh aggression and cruel conflict to a time of reconciliation and peace throughout Asia."

Relatively junior protocol officers were the only official Vietnamese to greet Bunker upon his arrival from Katmandu and Bangkok yesterday afternoon. When Lodge returned for his second tour as ambassador 20 months ago, large numbers of important Vietnamese government officials were on hand to greet him.

President Has Priest Flown To Funeral

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
BONN — President Johnson had a German-born priest from Texas flown here for the funeral yesterday of former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

The priest, the Rev. Wunbold Schneider, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church of Fredericksburg, Tex., spent much of the day with the President. Johnson met a number of church officials and each time he introduced them to his friend from Texas.

The President said that Father Schneider visited the Adenauer family last night at the late chancellor's home in the town of Rhondorf, across the Rhine River.

Schneider is a native of Bavaria. He moved several years ago to Fredericksburg, which has a large German population. In 1961 he conducted a special service for Ludwig Erhard when the former West German chancellor visited Stonewall, Tex., near the President's home.

Father Schneider's presence here was one more gesture by Johnson to demonstrate what he called his great respect for Dr. Adenauer and his regret at the former chancellor's death.

Jamestown Will Seek Federal Aid

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — The highway committee of Jamestown City Council voted Monday to recommend to the council at its next meeting that Jamestown seek federal and state aid for two sewer projects totaling about $2.3 million.

The larger of the two projects involves extension of sewer trunks from the Allen st. area to the boat landing at an estimated cost of $2 million. The other project involves the relief sewer and pumping station on Foote ave. at an estimated cost of $300,000.

Department of Public Works director, Joseph Veale informed the committee that state and federal grants, if approved, would amount to almost 60 per cent of the total cost of the two projects.

The contract for paving nearly a mile of city streets was awarded to Mayer Brothers of Erie for $109,765, marking the first time in many years that paving of city streets is to be done by a private contractor. In the past, all paving work has been done by DPW crews. DPW director Veale said parts of nine streets are involved. The contract also includes curb and gutter work on the same streets, as well as some work on certain storm sewers.

Admission by Common Market Of Britain Now Imminent

By ANTHONY LEWIS
(C) N.Y. Times News Service
LONDON — Britain's long-awaited move for admission to the common market is now imminent. It may come as soon as next week.

That was the belief here yesterday after two developments indicated the quickening pace of government plans on the market.

The European Free Trade Association announced that it will hold a special ministerial meeting on Friday in London. Britain requested it to discuss her market plans with her E.F.T.A. partners.

Prime Minister Wilson arranged to meet informally with the members of his cabinet Saturday and then on Sunday at Chequers, his country home. The two days will be devoted to what one source called a "seminar" on the common market.

These sessions will not, officially, be cabinet meetings. The final decision will be taken at a formal meeting in the cabinet room at 10 Downing Street.

If the "seminar" over the weekend indicates a gathering consensus, the formal cabinet decision could follow almost immediately. Cabinet meetings are usually held on Tuesday and Thursday.

It is perhaps still possible for Wilson to draw back at the edge and say no to the idea of market membership. But the overwhelming belief here is that he has already all but committed himself to a serious attempt at entry.

In recent weeks Wilson has been advised to delay. It has been argued that Britain would be unwise to make so important a move before the conclusion of the Kennedy round tariff negotiations in Geneva, now expected in mid-May, or before the common market summit conference scheduled for Rome at the end of May.

On the other hand, it was said that Wilson had to keep up "momentum" on the issue. He has used that word often himself, and he seems to have found the argument decisive.

The big question is still whether any British move has a chance to get past the expected negative attitude of President De Gaulle. The French president vetoed the previous British application in 1963.

On that question there is a not entirely explicable air of optimism in London. In the House of Commons yesterday the foreign secretary, George Brown, was asked whether Britain had "a 50-50 chance of getting in." He replied: "I have taken on many a bet on worse terms than that."

Johnson, De Gaulle Meet at Bonn Funeral

By HENRY TANNER
(C) N.Y. Times News Service
BONN — President Johnson and President De Gaulle yesterday expressed to one another the hope that they might be able to meet again in the near future, either in the United States or France.

The friendly exchange, in a brief private meeting, was understood to have fallen far short of a formal invitation by either man.

"There is no project at the present time," a French spokesman said.

And George Christian, the White House spokesman, said: "All leaders are welcome to come to the United States, but I don't know anything about any specific invitation."

The Johnson-De Gaulle encounter, one of several between visiting dignitaries here for the funeral of Konrad Adenauer, followed a luncheon given by German President Heinrich Lübke. It lasted about 10 minutes.

French officials take the position that any Johnson-De Gaulle conference would have to be in Paris. Their reasoning is that the French president has been in office longer and that he made a journey to Washington in 1963 to attend the funeral of President Kennedy.

Eyewitnesses reported yesterday that De Gaulle on several occasions appeared to be annoyed at being drawn into political talks on an occasion that he had wanted to be purely one of mourning for a man to whom he had been drawn by a deep personal friendship.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain used the occasion of his brief meetings with European leaders and President Johnson to inform them of his intention to move quickly toward a decision on formal application for British membership in the common market.

Pittsburgh Area Faces Strike Of Milk Workers

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The 13-county Pittsburgh area is threatened with a strike of dairy employees and milk drivers that would virtually shut off milk supplies in the district.

By a vote of 586-168, Local 205 Milk & Ice Cream Salesmen Drivers & Dairy Employees voted Monday night to strike next Monday if no contract agreement is reached.

Local President William Lickert said a main point of dispute is the industry's demand to pay ice cream and milk drivers on a hourly basis. They've been on commission since the union was formed.

A strike would affect 63 dairy firms, ice cream plants and truckers who haul milk from farms.

State Would Establish Firemen's Pension Fund -- Warren Has Its Own

Boroughs in Warren County maintaining a paid fire department of three or more members would be authorized to establish a firemen's pension fund or pension annuity for the benefit of fire department members, under terms of a bill now in the House of Representatives.

Warren Borough, the only fire department qualified in the county for the money, is getting along without it by using a pension fund of its own.

The measure provides that either the pension fund or pension annuity be maintained by a charge against each paid member of the fire department, by an annual appropriation from the borough, by payments from the State Treasurer to the municipality from money received in taxes paid on premiums by foreign fire insurance companies and by gifts, grants or bequests to the fund.

It is stipulated in the bill that in addition to benefits from the fund to retired or disabled members of the department, benefits would be paid families of members killed in service.

Monthly pension or retirement benefits would be one-half the monthly average salary of a member during the last 60 months of employment, according to the bill.

The Warren Borough Fire Department, since May of 1953, has been participating in the two per cent paid on premiums by foreign fire insurance companies under the Act of June 7, 1879, as amended.

Chief Ern Fitzgerald said the amounts received from the state treasurer are not set as to amount or time of receipt. The appropriations are handled by the Warren National Bank trust department. Through investments in stocks and bonds, the local Gordon Club Pension Fund has achieved a sizable balance.

Warren borough maintains the only department in the county with paid personnel, the others being volunteer fire departments, numbering 17.

At the present time no charge toward the pension plan is made against borough department firemen nor has the borough, to date, made any annual appropriations.

Nab Youth On Liquor Violation

TITUSVILLE -- A New York State youth was charged with illegal consumption of alcoholic beverages early Sunday morning after he and his two companions were apprehended by Titusville police.

Charged was Patrick J. Charest, 18, of Bemus Point, New York. The youth paid $25 forfeit and was scheduled to have a hearing Monday.

At 2:45 a. m., police chased a car which they said was traveling at a high rate of speed on Route 27. During the chase, police said the three minors in the car threw various alcoholic beverage containers out of the car's windows.

Titusville police also stated the case may involve a charge of bringing untaxed liquor into Pennsylvania. The incident is still under investigation.

volved, McKean, Elk, Cameron and Warren and the application for Articles of Incorporation under which the new organization will be known as the Bradford Regional Airport Authority.

DECISION COMES LATER

Cobham Fund Testimony Ends in County Court

Testimony in the Cobham estate trust fund was concluded yesterday afternoon after a number of continued hearings before Judge Alexander C. Flick Jr. in Orphans Court.

After nearly 15 years of litigation, the judge yesterday said the case poses a difficult problem but stated he could see no reason to rush to get it solved. A transcript of testimony will be prepared with some inevitable delay and copies made available to the attorneys involved.

Legal representatives will then be provided time for arguments before the court and to submit briefs which will be studied by the judge before an eventual opinion is handed down.

Most of yesterday's questioning in regard to the Salvation Army-owned Ivy House in Philadelphia was directed to Col. Thomas A. Martin of Salvation Army Inc. of New York State and dealt with $85,000 sought from the Cobham trust funds toward building a recreational center at Ivy House.

The Salvation Army is also on record in its plans to acquire one of the cottages at Ivy House as a memorial to Lord Henry and Ann Cobham at whose bequest the Cobham fund went to the Salvation Army as trustees.

Col. Martin told the court that if approval was given the Army's plan to use the Cobham funds to care for Warren County's needy or orphaned children at the Philadelphia based facility, there would be ample space available.

Speaking on behalf of the Cobham trustees, Col. Martin reiterated their stand turning down an offer from the Hoffman Home trustees (in this case, the county commissioners) for joint administration of the Hoffman Children's Home and using both trusts to operate not only the home but provide practical education in agriculture for the children as specified by the Cobhams.

Commissioner D. H. Lay was recalled to the stand to read a sanitation report on the Hoffman Home, dated April 20, in which the home's general maintenance was described as "good," all corrections of recent conditions completed, except for those included in the proposed building program and the notation that final plans for the building have been completed and submitted for state approval.

Lay said, he would favor any joint administration of the Hoffman Home or any program meeting the intent of both the Salvation Army trustees and those of the Hoffman fund, provided the court approved.

Questioned as to an expanded program at the local children's home, Lay said it was anticipated that services of one of the county's child welfare workers would be provided there weekends.

Col. Martin was asked if he approved of neglected or orphaned children being transported 300 miles from their home environment for care. He replied that if it meant better environment and opportunity "by all means--300 or 3,000."

Commissioner Lay stated he would prefer to see Warren County's children remain here since in many instances friends and families visit them weekends and holidays and some occasionally visit their own homes. Lay added, he would be reluctant to see "our children" sent to Philadelphia or "any other large city."

Harold S. Hampson represents the Cobham heirs; John Stewart, the Salvation Army; David Swanson, the County Commissioners and Robert Wolfe, the Commonwealth in the litigation.

Town Crier

... By Les Rickey

I've been asked, in view of yesterday's column on Expo 67, what I would put in the American Pavilion in place of the old movie clips, the five-story pop art painting, the political buttons, and our spacecraft exhibits.

The theme of the exhibit is "Creative America," and I challenged the United States Information Agency's belief that they have given an adequate cross-section of American creativity.

In place of the old movie clips, I'd take a trip down to State College, Pa., where the fifth grade of East Penn Elementary School has put together a six-minute movie on "the secret magic of numbers." They put together what they learned of Mayan, Egyptian, Arabian, Chinese, Hindu, and even cavemen numerical systems. They include modern number systems right up to computer language. All in six minutes, and that's creative. I'm sure they're not alone in a country that has 3,000 miles and 190 million people between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

Where the huge pop art painting stands, there would be presentations by a far greater cross-section of American artistry. It would come from Denver, where I know a woman who is an invalid at 34 and spends a great deal of time painting Rocky Mountain scenery, or from California, where an advertising salesman for a newspaper paints moody people in his spare time, or from Warren, where the Art League has turned out some paintings that are far more creative, to me, than all the paint smears in any five-story canvas (I doubt that you could make a painting that large very perfect from an aesthetic point of view).

In the Apollo, Gemini, and Mercury spacecraft section, there would be people instead... the people who invented the processes in their spare time which led to the development of the spacecraft. There would be enough room to put in the inventor of the Hammond organ, the entire cast and production crew of a summer theater in Kentucky, and the wood-carving retired men from the Douglas fir country.

And in place of the display of old campaign buttons, I'd put a panel that included a member of the John Birch Society, a Socialist, a Negro civil rights worker, a Dixiecrat, a Republican and a Democrat. That would tell more about the American political system and its creativity than any watchdog from the William Cullen Bryant attempt for the presidency.

And when I was through, there would be those who feel about me as I do now about the USA. But I think I'd be closer to the answer than they are.

Time Problems

How can time for beauty be fitted into a busy schedule? Patricia W.

The best way to find time for beauty is to incorporate your grooming ritual into your everyday life so that it becomes an automatic habit.

For example, learn to apply hand lotion every time you wash your hands. Keep a bottle at your sink and bathroom basin. Soon you'll reach for it without even thinking. Always remember to push back your cuticles while your hands are damp.

Another trick is to perform each facet of your routine properly. If you apply lipstick carefully with a brush, after powdering your lips first, it will stay on all day long and you'll actually have saved time.

Stop and think of the unnecessary extra minutes wasted on telephoning, dawdling, staring glassy-eyed at TV. You can convert this wasteland into time spent improving your looks. Make out a written beauty schedule. Don't waste a minute. Don't forget that you may even strengthen tummy muscles with "invisible" contract-release exercises while waiting for a bus!

Just remember, no one has more than twenty-four hours a day—even the most famous beauties have had to learn to make every minute work for them.

ROLL-AWAY REAR

How can I lose weight in my posterior area?

Judith Anne B.

Sitting constitutes a major problem for those who have a tendency to be heavy through the hips and derriere. To tackle these spreadable areas specifically, try the following two exercises:

1. Sit on the floor (preferably wearing slacks or a leotard). Keep your legs together and stretched out straight in front of you. Roll from side to side, swinging the same hand over your head as the side that raises up from the floor. You should come down on the palm of your opposite hand. Do this roll briskly at least ten times for best results.

2. Sit with knees slightly bent, heels on floor, hands on hips or out-curved in front of you. "Walk" across the floor (on your bottom) by extending first one leg and then the other. Watch out for splinters! Try going forward and backward ten to twenty times each. Go-go music helps.

BLACK AND BLUE
What color eye liner should I use? My complexion is fair, my hair is blonde, my eyes are blue with definite black lining. Is black too much?

Ruth G.

In view of your delicate coloring, I think dark blue would be a better choice than black for evening. Slate would be a good choice for daytime wear.

If you do use black, the gray-blacks or brown-blacks are always preferable to a harsh "total" black. The Cleopatra look went out ages ago.

Grange Notes

Warren Grange will hold its meeting on Monday, May 1, at 8 p. m. in the Warren Grange Hall. The Home Economics chairman will have charge of the program. Members, whether men or women, are to bake cakes and decorate them for Mothers Day. They are to be layer cakes (not box cake). Each is to make a cup cake, besides the cake, for the judges to test.

Members are to bring their favorite recipes to assist Pomona in its cook book project. At the social hour, the contest cakes will be cut for refreshments.

The Warren Grange Home Economics Group is to meet at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday, May 2. Bring a sack lunch; coffee will be provided.

Ackley Grange was host for the third visitation meeting at which Warren Grange provided the program. Catherine Van Orsdale, Ackley Grange lecturer, lit the Centennial Candle for the meeting. The theme was "Grange Principles".

At the opening of the program, all sang "My Faith Looks Up To Thee", and Delbert Werle played a saxophone solo "How Great Thou Art". Those taking place in the pageant on "Grange Principles" were: Nellie Samuelson, Marie Belton, Katryn Koebley, Madge Kehm, Marjorie Werle, Lucille Johnson, Jeanne Godwin. In closing, a Friendship Circle was formed around the altar with all singing "Blest Be The Tie That Binds". Pianist was Shirley Anne Johnson.

The program continued with music, a posture parade skit, and a monologue, another skit on "How To Look and Not To Look"; the presentation of the visitation certificate by the Warren Grange lecturer, Gladys Simones, to the Ackley Grange lecturer, Catherine Van Orsdale. Others who took part in the program included:

Nannie Kirberger, James Stockdill, Fred Simones, Harry Perrine, Jerrold Johnson, Delbert Werle, Myron Rapp, Jeanne Godwin, Anna Perrine, Dania Nuhfer, Catherine Stockdill, Jean Arnold, Lucille Johnson. Odessa Croman assisted with makeup. In bringing the program to a close all joined in singing the Grange "Centennial Song".

The next visitation meeting will be on Monday, May 8, when East Branch Grange will be host and Ackley Grange will give the program.

Past State Flora, Flossie Schewitzer, and Past State Master Deputy, Merle Schewitzer, Warren; Past State Assistant Steward E. Leo Johnson, and present State Master Deputy Robert Jameson and Mrs. Jameson were in Indiana, Pennsylvania, on Sunday afternoon to attend funeral services for Past State Master Beatty Dimit.

After the services at Bell Funeral Home, members of the Dimit family and the visiting grangers who came from all parts of Pennsylvania, and some national grange officers from other States, were served a dinner by Mrs. Dimit's Sunday School Class.

Dr. Dimit, who with his wife, Irene, would have observed the Golden Anniversary of their wedding on June 8, had not only in the past served as a state grange officer, but as a national officer as well.

Opening lead: Four of ♠ South failed to capitalize on a helpful roadblock provided by "Mother Nature," and the result was the loss of a vulnerable game contract in clubs.

West opened the four of hearts, East played the jack, and declarer permitted him to hold the trick. South won the continuation with the ace of hearts and drew trump. He played a diamond next, however, West put up the ace and cashed the setting trick with the king of hearts.

North criticized his partner for not bidding three no trump, and yet—with only eight top tricks—South is confronted with the very same problem at that contract if West opens a heart. With the opponents attacking his weak spot and the ace of diamonds not yet disclosed, declarer must make an attempt to disrupt their line of communications.

South's strategy in ducking the first round of hearts might have worked out, if there were any chance that East had the ace of diamonds and a doubleton heart, for, when East is in with the top diamond—if he is unable to lead a third heart, South can eventually discard dummy's remaining heart on the jack of diamonds.

In light of West's activities during the auction, however, he was clearly marked with the ace of diamonds, and declarer's only chance to avert defeat was to win the first lead in the hope that East had the queen-jack alone in hearts. Observe that by playing the ace of hearts at trick one, declarer can block the suit. When West is in with the ace of diamonds, the defense can take only one heart trick whether West cashes the king of hearts or underleads it. South regains the lead in time to obtain the necessary discard.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. FOR WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1967

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Curb bizarre notions and desires. Make preparations for future moves, while you also take good care of this day's obligations. Be consistent.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—There are tendencies now to take off on tangents, to "forget" small but vital details, and to ease up in effort just when more persistence is needed. Don't fail yourself by yielding to such inclinations.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Fine Mercury influences stimulate your many talents now. Written matters and intellectual pursuits especially favored. Your foresight and instinct about people can put you in an advantageous position.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Demonstrate your abilities in a tactful manner, bearing in mind that many may not see eye to eye with you. Don't let this dismay you; just keep doing your best and others will eventually fall into line.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Solar influences, highly propitious, now encourage both old and new projects; stimulate both team work and solo endeavors. You should be highly enthusiastic.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—This day has many opportunities for those who are well trained in their lines and who make good use of their knowledge. Back your program with purposeful action and, in personal dealings, don't make mountains out of molehills.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Strongly beneficial planetary influences indicate numerous roads to achievement, the establishment of sounder procedures.

Don't be impulsive, but DO act! SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—If you find that your methods are not bringing the results anticipated, seek the reasons and find other means of attaining. Don't let seeming lack of appreciation hamper your usual king-sized efforts.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Avoid present tendencies toward recklessness and extravagance. You could regret such actions in the future. Be calm and you can handle unexpected situations astutely. CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Neither press too feverishly for results nor, on the other hand, yield to despondency if things don't go right. Be as enthusiastic and determined as usual in your pursuit of progress, but maintain an even tempo.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Your intuition and fine judgment in familiar activities will be a boon in tight spots now. You COULD try something new if so inclined, but don't go beyond your depth.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Once you have determined that they are feasible and suitable to the situation at hand, go ahead and advance your ideas, make plans for new projects. Good influences!

YOU BORN TODAY? Though very quick to act at times, you are essentially a thinker. You can inspect plans and areas for action with seemingly a mere glance, yet get the picture accurately. Because of this intuitive factor, you tend to take chances where others would not—and most times you win. Always be careful not to strive for the unreasonable, however. Taureans make gifted artists, teachers, musicians and scientists. Your discriminating taste, refinement and good manners are outstanding. Birthdate of: Eugene Delacroix, French painter.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

BALDNESS IN WOMEN

According to Dr. G. C. Sauer, "Hair loss on the scalp is important because it is so obvious." This is true in men but less so in women who seldom become completely denuded. A noticeable thinning, however, sends them into a tizzy and the majority can hardly wait until a wig is obtained.

More than 100 experienced dermatologists were asked if baldness is becoming more common in women. Fifty-three per cent felt there had been an increase, 30 per cent reported no increase, and 15 per cent were not sure.

Female baldness begins a decade or more after it develops in men. (The same can be said of hardening of the arteries.) Many women have completed the menopause by this time and there is a reduction in female sex hormones. These ladies are in the same glandular state as were their fathers or husbands when they began to lose hair. A similar hormonal imbalance occurs six to eight weeks after childbirth leading to a temporary loss of hair in some women.

Women enjoy no more success than do men in regrowing hair. The same causes are blamed including not wearing a chapeau, or exposure to the sun, many blame a shampoo yet use another to stimulate hair growth. The excessive use of chemicals for waving, brush rollers, hair coloring, teasing, and rating also are said to be traumatic.

Tension on the scalp from tight braids, ponytails, and brush rollers impede the circulation. Various diseases, anti-cancer drugs, anticoagulants, emotional shock, lack of thyroid, and iron deficiency anemia also induce spotty hair loss. The remedy depends upon the cause; when it is not known, blame heredity, age or hormones, and begin saving for a wig.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request. TOMORROW: The Runaway.

HAPPY LANDING

K. T. writes: I had a stroke a year ago and feel fine except that my blood pressure is 200. Can I fly to Miami?

REPLY

Your physician knows your physical condition best and is better able to answer this question than I am. As a rule, hypertension is not a bona fide reason for giving up air travel because commercial liners are pressurized.

MURMUR AND HEART STATUS

E. L. writes: Can a person with a functional murmur have a sound heart?

REPLY

Yes, Functional means non-organic. A person who has had a functional murmur for 80 years may develop coronary thrombosis, but there would be no relationship between the two heart conditions.

TODAY'S HEALTH HINT — Obesity aggravates high blood pressure.

Community Takes Steps Against Problem of Old-Age Housing

By Peggy and Lew Crippen
The Youngsville Community Action Council Monday evening took the first step in providing medium-priced housing for elderly citizens.

Churches and organizations in Youngsville will be invited to name two delegates each to membership in a non-profit corporation which will apply to the Farmers Home Administration for a 3 per cent loan to finance the apartment units. Each church and organization will be requested to provide a revolving fund by advancing $10 each.

President Donald E. Abraham will contact the Kiwanis Club, Grange, Business and Professional Women's Club, Borough Council, Youngsville Business Peoples Assn. and the Golden Age Society. Mrs. Richard Peters will contact the Methodist, Free Methodist and St. Lukes Roman Catholic churches. The Lutheran, Episcopal and Evangelical United Brethren churches will be contacted by Kenneth Johnson, Jean Zock and Lewis Crippen, respectively.

An organizational meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Monday, June 12, when officers will be elected, a board of directors will be named, and the non-profit corporation will be formed.

Robert Maneely, Farmers Home Administration, Corry, attended Monday's Economic Opportunity Community Action Council meeting and outlined legal procedures. Maneely explained that apartments can be constructed with 3 per cent loans amortized for fifty years. The rents will depend upon the costs of construction and operations including all utilities.

President Donald E. Abraham emphasized that the Council is not attempting to limit membership to the organizations discussed at the meeting. Any organization may name two delegates and invest $10 to become a member in the non-profit corporation.

Mayola Sanford, president of the Youngsville Public Library Association, Monday evening received a check for $115 from Barbara Sullivan, finance chairman, of the Youngsville Business and Professional Women's Club. The check, largest in several years, was the amount raised by the Youngsville Girls Club in tag days sponsored in the Youngsville business section Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The contribution will be used to generally finance the library's operations.

Mary Hedstrom, a Youngsville high school student, was honored as the BPW Girl of the Month. She attended the meeting with her mother.

Judy Hoy, Bonnie Carter, Ellen Northup, Ruby Ransom, Barbara Sullivan, and Audrey Carlson were welcomed into membership.

LOBLAWS SHOP IN '67 AT LOBLAWS... THE AREA'S MOST PROGRESSIVE SUPERMARKET!

Making the Spring Scene

Spring is a merry-go-round of things to do. Some groups are having their final meetings to wind up the business of the winter season. Others are meeting to organize the summer activities. Whichever may be the case, all of these make demands on your time, especially on meal preparation time.

Solve your mealtime problem with convenient easy-to-do casseroles or skillet dishes featuring canned barbecue beans. Here's one called "Bold Chops & Beans". . . easily prepared, it can be made unattended for 45 minutes, leaving you plenty of time to get ready for your evening meeting.

You'll really like the bold new flavor of barbecue beans. Featuring 4 kinds of beans (Pea Beans, Great Northern Beans, Pinto Beans, and Pink Beans) gently simmered in a tangy tomato barbecue sauce, they boast of a true western smoky flavor. Serve them as a tempting side dish or team them with pork chops, as in this recipe, for mighty good eating.

Round out your menu with a crisp green salad highlighted with cauliflowerettes. . . and hot French bread. Then choose a dessert from the freezer and pour a beverage. Supper is ready!

BOLD CHOPS AND BEANS
4 pork chops (about 1 pound)
1/2 cup sliced celery
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 cans (1 pound each) barbecue beans
1/4 teaspoon caraway seed
Sour cream

Trim excess fat from chops. In skillet, brown chops and cook celery and green pepper until slightly tender. Remove chops; set aside. Stir in beans and caraway. Pour into shallow baking dish (10x6x2"). Press chops in beans. Bake at 375 for 45 minutes. Top each chop with dollop of sour cream. Makes 4 servings.

BOLD NEW FLAVOR

Canned barbecue beans with that bold new crisp green salad with cauliflowerettes and flavor are featured here with pork chops, hot French bread, garnished with sour cream. To go along, a

A Gourmet Dinner

"Chicken Stroganoff" looks as if it had come out of a Cordon Bleu kitchen. It has that elegant sauced look of French cookery.

The happy truth is that even a novice will find the recipe easy and rewarding. It doesn't require experienced hands.

(There is one spot where any cook should be careful, though. After adding the sour cream, the sauce should be only gently heated, not to the boiling, not even the bubbling stage. If the sour cream is heated too much, it will curdle as all good cooks know.)

For a party be sure the chicken breasts are boned, if you have to ask your meatman to do it. For family this nice isn't always necessary.

The sauce has the savory tang and rich blush of canned tomato sauce with mushrooms. This convenience product adds needed texture and gourmet flavor.

Star "Chicken Stroganoff" on a buffet with "Baked Rice," "Vegetable Medley," French bread and sweet butter, "Peach Delight" and coffee.

1/2 cup chicken bouillon
1 Tablesp. prepared mustard
2 (8-oz.) cans tomato sauce with mushrooms
1 pt. sour cream

Season chicken breasts with salt, pepper and paprika; brown well on both sides in oil. Push chicken aside and cook onions lightly. Add bouillon, mustard and tomato sauce with mushrooms; simmer, covered, for 45 minutes. Remove chicken to platter. Add sour cream to sauce and heat—do not boil. Pour over chicken and serve. Makes 6 servings.

BAKED RICE
1 1/2 cups uncooked rice
3 Tablespoon butter
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/4 cups water
1 cup chicken bouillon
1 (10-oz.) pkg. frozen peas, thawed
Combine all ingredients in a 1 1/2-qt. casserole; cover. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 1 hour or longer. Stir in thawed peas and bake for 15 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

VEGETABLE MEDLEY
1 pkg. Italian salad dressing mix
1 can artichoke hearts, drained
1 can asparagus, drained and cut up
2 cups salad greens

1/2 cucumber, sliced
Mix Italian salad dressing mix as directed on package. Combine next 4 ingredients; toss and chill. Just before serving, toss with salad dressing and serve on individual salad plates. Makes 6 servings.

PEACH DELIGHT
1 (1-lb. 14-oz.) can sliced peaches
1 (3-oz.) pkg. lemon flavored gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
1 pt. vanilla ice cream
20 vanilla wafers
1/2 cup whipping cream, whipped

Mint leaves
Drain peached reserving syrup. Add water to syrup to make 1 cup; heat to boiling. Pour over gelatin stirring until dissolved. Add cold water, Spoon ice cream into gelatin mixture; stir until melted. Chill about 20 minutes. Meantime, line 8x8x2-inch baking pan with vanilla wafers. Cut peach slices in half (reserving 8 pieces for decoration) and fold into mixture. Pour into lined baking pan. Chill for several hours until firm. Cut into 9 squares and serve each with whipping cream decorated with half of peach slice and sprig of mint. Makes 8 to 9 servings.

IMPRESSIVE ENTREE

Chicken stroganoff is an impressive party entree. Chicken breasts are sauteed until golden brown in hot oil, then sauced with a piquant mixture of sour cream and canned tomato sauce with mushrooms. Gourmet menu includes Baked Rice, Vegetable Medley, and Peach Delight with coffee.

Do You Ever Cook Bavarian Eggs?

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
WELL, OF all things! We've discovered a new way of serving fried eggs.

According to the donors of this recipe, this way stems from the Bavarian cuisine. We wouldn't know. But we are sure that the dish is perfectly delicious.

It's a combination of the fried eggs, sauteed onions and rye bread toasted in butter. Our tasters were all for this way of offering eggs — and so are we.

BAVARIAN EGGS
1 stick (1/2 cup) plus 2 pats (2 tablespoons) butter
6 slices rye bread (oval shape, about 5 x 3 inches)
1 cup finely chopped onion
6 eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

Mark the stick of butter into 8 equal pats and set aside with the other 2 butter pats near the range, ready for use.

In a 10-inch skillet over moderate heat, melt 3 butter pats. Add 3 bread slices; turn at once and brown; repeat process with 3 more butter pats and remaining 3 bread slices. As you brown the bread, place in a single layer on a hot heat-proof platter and keep warm in a very low oven.

In the skillet over low heat, melt 2 more butter pats; add the onion; cook, stirring often until transparent. Place equal portions of onion over bread slices.

In the skillet over low heat, melt 1 more butter pat; add 3 eggs; sprinkle with half the salt and pepper. Cover skillet and cook until whites are opaque and yolks still soft — about 5 minutes. Place an egg on top of the onion on 3 of the bread slices. Repeat process with last butter pat and 3 more eggs. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

Akeley News Notes

Miss Janice Kelley was honor guest at a variety shower given by Mrs. Henry Larson and Ida Grace Larson at the Larson home, Thursday evening. Games and contests were enjoyed and prizes awarded to Mrs. Elton Cable, Mrs. Edward Miller, Mrs. William Eckberg and Mrs. Harry Randall.

The honor guest received many gifts for her home. Refreshments were served from a table with centerpiece of forsythia and narcissus, and yellow candles.

Miss Kelley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kelley of Jamestown, former residents of Russell, will wed Thomas Eckberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Eckberg of Jamestown on May 13 in the First Methodist in Jamestown.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Lundmark arrived home from Lakeland, Florida, Thursday, where they have been spending the winter.

An open meeting was held at the Akeley Grange Friday evening with 110 in attendance. Granges represented were, Brokenstraw, Watson, Diamond, East Branch, Chandlers Valley and Warren. Warren Grange members furnished the program. A cake baking contest was judged and Mrs. Ralph Way's cake was the winner. Mrs. Way will now take a cake to Pomona Grange for that contest.

The next meeting of the local Grange will be held on May 5 when the 1st and 2nd degrees will be conferred on six candidates. Any other Grange wishing to bring candidates for initiation are welcome to do so. On May 8 Akeley Grange will go to East Branch to furnish the program for the evening.

Refreshments were served. Mrs. Cable and Mrs. Randall were chairmen of the committee.
